Teacher Union Fined

NEW YORK (AP) — The United Federation of Teachers was fined $150,000, today and its president, Albert Shanker, sentenced to 15 days in jail and fined $250 for criminal contempt of court in conducting a strike against the city's public school system.

The sentencing, by Justice Emilio Nunez in State Supreme Court, was viewed by the union as the first application of the punitive provisions of the state's new Taylor law, which bars strikes by public employes.

Charges against two other union officials were dismissed by Nunez.

He granted a 10-day stay of the penalties after counsel for the teachers' union announced its intention to appeal.

In New York, Supreme Court is a court of original jurisdiction.

The city's board of education had obtained an injunction against the strike under the new law, but it did not halt the walkout of the 50,000-member union. The fine thus amounts to about $3 per union member.

Maximum penalties under the law are fines of $10,000 a day against the union and jail terms of up to 30 days and a $250 fine against leaders.

The law has been assailed by the two-million-member State AFL-CIO.

The other defendants with Shanker were UFT Vice President George Altomare and David Wittes, treasurer.

The walkout virtually eliminated all formal classroom instruction for the city's 1.1 million public school pupils. It was in effect 14 school days over a 17-day period.

4,100 Pounds of Clothing Collected for Flood Victims

More than 4,100 pounds of clothing has been collected in less than a week for flood victims of the Texas Rio Grande Valley at relief headquarters established last Wednesday in a vacant store at 135 East Front St. by Harry A. Buckles.

Prompted by concern for friends and personal ties in the Brownsville and Harlingen, Tex. during 12 years, Buckles undertook the clothing drive project last Wednesday.

Reports reaching Buckles indicated that flood victims, caught in the 30-inch rains following Hurricane Beulah were receiving food and lodging but needed clothing.

The campaign closes today when Buckles is due to report to a hospital at Scott Air Force Base in St. Louis for a checkup following surgery six months ago.

Buckles formerly operated a Sikeston upholstery firm, which still bears his name. He is semi-retired, but is a real estate broker in Missouri and Texas.

Buckles' nephew Harry Jones, a sophomore at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau, and Marine Pfc. Max Ellison, Sikeston, who is home on leave helped pick up clothing and pack it for shipping.

"Without them, the project could never have been accomplished," Buckles said.

A total of 2,700 pounds of clothing was shipped last week and 1,400 were shipped Tuesday. The first shipment was destined for the Chamber of Commerce in Brownsville. The second was sent to the sheriff's department of Harlingen.

Transportation was donated by Tucker Truck Lines of Sikeston and East Texas Motor.

Uniform sized boxes that hold 100 pounds were donated by Anchor Toy Co.

"We expect many contributions today," Buckles said. If any organization collects a sizeable amount, say 500 pounds or more, we will ship it after today."

Auto Door Hits Gasoline Pump

A pump at West's Saveway Service 836 West Malone, was damaged at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday when the door of a car driven by William T. Bell, 73, 509 Wilson, opened as he backed his automobile.

The car door was damaged also, police reported. No summons was issued.

In other activity, Ancel Gross, Sikeston was charged Tuesday with public intoxication.

Haywood Branch, Memphis, Tenn., was arrested early today on South Main and charged with public intoxication.

Mrs. Gary Abernathy, 305 Olive, reported to police today that a red 24" Western Flyer bicycle had been in her yard for the past several days.

Poverty Bill Compromise Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected by a 47-42 vote today a cut-down $925-million compromise emergency job proposal as part of the antipoverty bill.

Supporters of the later job proposal had thrown their backing to the compromise, conceding that the original plan probably would be defeated.

The outcome of this test on the emergency job rider was a victory for the Johnson Administration, which opposed such a proposal in any form because of its budget-busting implications.

However, many Republicans and nearly all Souther Democrats joined with some administration supporters to turn back the compromise, which was offered by Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., author of the original $2.8-billion job plan, urged all of his followers to back the Prouty proposal.

Miller Will Attend City Mgrs. Meet

City Manager W. Raymert Miller will leave Friday for the 53rd annual conference of the International City Managers' Association Oct. 8-12, in the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans, La.

More than 850 administrators are expected. They will examine problems such as, labor relations, fiscal reform, city-school relations, civil rights, and increasing the individual's involvement in city government.

Innovations to be discussed in workshops include, police role in riot control, building state responsiveness, budgeting, and knowing the "ins" and "outs" of the federal establishment.

17 New Firms Join C. of C.

With less than half of the Chamber of Commerce members reporting in the membership drive that opened Tuesday 17 new firms have been recruited, Richard Pinkerton, manager, said today.

The drive will continue through the week.

New members include Cowan and Holman Construction Co., Dr. Robert B. Bennett, Hux and Green attorneys, Moore's Missouri Co., and Palmer Color TV - Stereo Sales & Service.

A general membership meeting is set for Oct. 18 at the Holiday Inn.

Criminal Lawyer Defends Court

Martin Green, St. Louis criminal attorney, defended a United States supreme court ruling on admission of evidence for a defendant, the Kiwanis club Tuesday night at the Holiday Inn. President Roger Sherman presided.

Disputing a statement by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, Green said that the crime rate has risen. Green said law enforcement officers, are reporting more crimes due to improved methods.

The club announced that Jerry Hampton is Scoutmaster for troop 43, replacing Dr. Bill Dillion, who served three years.

Christmas fruitcakes, annual club project, are on sale.

Grease Flareup Brings Firemen

NEW MADRID -- The fire department was called at 12:40 p.m. yesterday to the Country Club.

Flaming grease on a kitchen stove caused a fire. Minor smoke and water damage was done to the kitchen and dining room.

Claude Keasler Gets Nod for ASCS Post

WASHINGTON AP - Claude Keasler, 46, of Parma, Mo., was recommended Tuesday by Missouri's senators for appointment to the Missouri State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Sens. Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long said Rep. Paul C. Jones, D-Mo., concurred in the recommendation.

Keasler would fill a vacancy caused by the death of A. L. (Abbie) Story of Charleston, Mo., in a plane crash Sept. 20.

Keasler has served as a farmer fieldman of the ASCS since 1961 in nine Southeast Missouri counties.

He has been a member of the Elk township ASCS committee since 1953 and a member of the county committee five years.

Keasler and his wife Wanda, live on a farm on route one, Parma. They have one daughter, Karen, an interior decorating student in Dallas.

Keasler was one of three men nominated at a meeting of delecommittees in Poplar Bluff.

W. R. (Dick) Phillips, New Madrid county farmer, was the nominee recommended by the delegates at the meeting called by Mrs. Mable Abbington of Poplar Bluff.

Phillips received the majority of votes from delegates.

The other candidate nominated was Charles Albert Farris of Braggadocio, Pemiscot County.

Since the other two members of the state ASC committee are from North Missouri, it was the hope of area Democrats that a Southeast Missourian would be placed on the committee to represent Southeast Missouri.

GOP Plans To Select 1968 Ticket

BENTON -- The Scott County Republican committee last night decided to have a special meeting to organize local Republican ticket for the coming election year.

The meeting will be the night of Oct. 21. The time and place will be announced later.

Since this is a grassroots meeting, those attending have been requested to bring a list of prospective candidates.

X15 Sends Speed Mark Higher

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) - An X15 rocket plane has set a winged-craft record of 4,534 miles an hour approaching speeds future aerospace craft will fly.

Air Force Maj. William J. Knight streaked almost seven times the speed of sound Tuesday in an eight-minute flight, skimming along the fringe of the atmosphere at 99,000 feet.

It was 284 miles an hour faster than the record he set in an X15 last Nov. 18 and augured well for upcoming attempts to reach 5,000 m.p.h., eight times sound's velocity.

This is the speed scientists figure maneuverable craft will need to shuttle between satellites and bases on the ground.

The workhorse X15, a stubby-winged, 50-foot -long dart powered by a 60,000-pound-thrust rocket engine, has been shooting toward this goal since it started flying seven years ago.

Beatles Reject Million-Dollar Single Day Offer

LONDON (AP) - The Beatles are not interested in an offer of $1 million for one day's work in the United States, a spokesman said today.

The reason: It would mean appearing personally at the 55,000-seat Shea Stadium in New York.

"We will definitely not accept the offer." said the spokesman. "The money doesn't matter. It is simply impossible to put across in any stadium or hall the kind of music the Beatles are playing these days."

The Beatles' current style has been described as avant garde pop, with mystical Indian overtones.

The $1 million was offered by American promoter Sidney Bernstein, now visiting London. He told reporters he believed he could fill the huge stadium for each of two Beatles' concerts in one day.

Bernstein promoted the first Beatles' tour of the United States in 1964.

More than a year ago the four Beatles quietly abandoned the frantic one-night stands that had driven teen-agers around the world to hysteria and made the Beatles multimillionaires.

They have since concentrated on producing records and making television films.

Farm Accident and Football Injure Two

Two were treated Tuesday in the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room:

Thomas O. Jones, Charleston, caught middle and ring fingers in pulley on combine; Larry R. Pulliam, Bertrand, injured shoulder while playing football.

Santiago Hits Homer In Third

BOSTON (AP) -- A home run by Boston pitcher Jose Santiago offset a St. Louis run earlier in the third inning to earn the Red Sox a 1-1 tie through the first four and one half innings of today's opening World Series battle with the Cardinals at Fenway Park.

Santiago's homer was the second hit off Cardinal right-hander Bob Gibson and came with one out in the bottom of the third. First baseman George Scott singled for the first hit with one down in the second.

St. Louis scored for a 1-0 lead in the top of the third when Lou Brock led off with a single, moved to third on a double by Curt Flood and scampered across the plate on a groundout by Roger Maris.

Santiago worked out of further danger by getting Orlando Cepeda to foul out to third baseman Dalton Jones and retiring Mike Shannon on a pop fly to second baseman Jerry Adair following a walk to Tim McCarver.

The Cardinals also threatened in the second when Shannon and Julian Javier hit back to back singles with nine out, but the threat died as Gibson bounced into an inning ending double play.

The score by innings:

Cardinals	0	0	1	0	0	--	--	--	1	8	0
Red Sox	0	0	1	0	x	--	--	--	1	3	0

Gibson and McCarver; Santiago and R. Gibson.

Greeks Arrest Publisher

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek military government today placed under house arrest Mrs. Helen Vlachou, the newspaper publisher charged with insulting the junta. She was the second prominent Greek ordered confined this week.

Deposed Premier Panayiotis Kanellopoulos was placed under guard in his home Monday night after he twice denounced the five-month-old government.

A man in civilian clothes, assumed to be a member of the Greek security police, stopped visitors as they tried to enter Mrs. Vlachou's apartment, telling them, "Mrs. Vlachou will see no one today." A source close to the 56-year-old publisher said, "Her house and papers are being searched by police and her telephone has been cut."

A phone call to her house, a block from the palace of King Constantine, brought no response.

Mrs. Vlachou was charged with insulting the junta after she was quoted as calling the ruling officers "mediocre and ignorant people" in an interview with the Turin newspaper La Stampa.

Mrs. Vlachou ceased publication of her two conservative newspapers, Kathmerini and Messimvrini, to protest the army's April 21 coup d'etat.

She was arrested on the defamation charge last Thursday but was released after four hours of questioning for a trial at an unspecified date.

Girl's Death Sets off Frost Freaking' Probe

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - "Frost freaking"-inhaling a chemical spray used to chill cocktail glasses - is under investigation by the State Consumer Protection Department after the death of an 11-year-old girl.

Lucie R. White of Greenwich inhaled so much of the chemical that it froze her larynx and blocked her breathing, according to the Greenwich medical examiner.

The girl collapsed and died Monday night at her home after breathing in the chemical vapor from a balloon which her 17-year-old brother, John, had filled from an aerosol container, police said.

Police Chief Stephen M. Baran Jr. of Greenwich said the department's youth division had received many reports recently of the latest teen-age fad.

Unlike most drugs, the chilling spray can be bought by children and "misused to the point where it becomes dangerous-and, as in this case, lethal," Baran said.

There have been reports that some Yale students have been using the spray to get "high," but the New Haven Police Department said Tuesday it had no evidence that the practice was prevalent in New Haven.

$679,947 Approved for Year Around Head Start Program

PORTAGEVILLE -- A $679,947 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington, D.C., for the year-around Head Start program in the Bootheel was announced Tuesday by Missouri senators.

The grant to the University of Missouri is for a program for about 500 children, 3-6 from low-income families over eight months in Pemiscot, New Madrid, Dunklin, Scott, Mississippi and Stoddard counties.

The 12 centers will be at Sikeston, Bloomfield, Portageville, North Lilbourn, Morehouse, Wardell, Hayti, Caruthersville, Senath - Hornersville, Reeves, Kennett and Campbell.

The programs -- both year-around and summer -- were formerly administered by the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, the OEO's Bootheel agency.

However, the summer Head Start program was taken away from DAEOC by the regional OEO office to Kansas City when regional OEO Director Don Thomason ruled that the DAEOC board of directors could not function effectively as a unit.

The DAEOC board and the regional director have had disputes since DAEOC was formed.

The summer Head Start program was administered by the Semo Development Corporation.

In August the DAEOC board was notified by the Kansas City office that the University of Missouri was interested in taking over the program in the Bootheel.

The university instead of DAEOC was awarded the program on the basis of the report of an OEO evaluation team, which made a study of DAEOC's administration.

The year-around program will start Monday with a three-day orientation for teachers and auxiliary personnel at Portageville.

Preregistration of Head Start children will be Oct. 12-13 at the centers, with classes scheduled to begin Oct. 16.

A supplemental grant of $80,000 is expected from OEO within the two weeks, after which two more centers are expected to be opened.

The university will assume the responsibility of training teachers, aides and administrative personnel. The university's schools of medicine, home economics and education and department of sociology will participate in the training, evaluation and research of the project.

The staff personnel at the centers includes 29 teachers, 50 low-income educational aides, 12 low-income social service aides, 16 low-income cooks and aides, 16 nurses and low-income nurses aides and 12 secretaries.

The central office staff includes four secretaries, a social service director, an educational director, a Head Start director and an office manager.

The psychological program will have a clinical psychologist, a psychological examiner and a counselor under the direction of Dr. Sam Thornton, clinical psychologist, who will serve as consultant. Graduate students of the University of Missouri might participate in these evaluations.

There will be 29 classes meeting one session a day five days a week. Each session will be five hours.

The staff consists of 29 teachers, 21 paid professionals, 123 paid nonprofessionals of which 72 will be parents of Head Start children, 86 volunteers of which 37 will be parents of Head Start children, 12 target area volunteer nonprofessionals and 24 volunteer professionals.

Two-thirds of those employed in the program will be from low-

Second Fatality in Two-Car Collision

Mrs. Frank Heubel, 69, South Bend, Ind., died Saturday night in the Poplar Bluff hospital as the result of injuries in a two-car collision last Wednesday on highway 67, seven miles east of Fisk.

She was a passenger in a 1961 Studebaker, driven by her husband, who also was fatally injured when he lost control of his car, it went over the center line, striking a 1967 Chevrolet driven by Harry Kluge, 74.

Klug and his wife, Helen, were taken to the Lucy Lee hospital, in Poplar Bluff. He received a broken leg and cuts and his wife cuts and internal injuries.

Two persons were injured Tuesday at 8:15 a.m. on highway 164, three miles west of Steele, when a 1957 Chevrolet, driven by Margaret Shubert 22, Hayti, collided with another car when he attempted to make a left turn.

His car was struck in the left side by a 1960 Ford dump truck driven by Frank Sheehy, 54, Poplar Bluff.

Shubert and a passenger, Alice Sprouse, 27, Steele, were treated by a steele physician for bruises and released.

Odis Williams 58, Sikeston, was treated by a Sikeston physician for neck injuries Tuesday he received at 5:45 p.m. on Scott county route A, two miles north of Benton. His parked car was struck by a 1965 Pontiac, driven by Gilbert Robert, 30, Benton.

Williams stopped to talk to a friend after he had parked his 1961 Ford over the crest of a hill. The Robert car was unable to stop in time to avoid a collision.

Williams was treated for a back and neck injury.

Cosmonaut Rates Moon Landing 5 To 10 Years off

MOSCOW (AP) — On the 10th anniversary of the first Sputnik, a Soviet cosmonaut predicted today that man will land on the moon within five or 10 years.

The U.S. space program calls for a landing in slightly over two years.

Konstantin P. Feoktistov, a scientist who orbited the earth three years ago, made his prediction amid anniversary articles in the Soviet press that emphasized prospects for manned stations in orbit but made a moon landing a later priority.

This tended to support earlier indications that the Soviet Union is no longer, if it ever was, racing the United States to the moon.

Feoktistov listed a manned laboratory in orbit as first among coming space developments, then a moon landing, then "starting to Venus and Mars."

Humphrey to Address FFA Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert Humphrey has accepted an invitation to address the Future Farmers of America in Kansas City Oct. 11, the national FFA headquarters announced here Tuesday.

An FFA spokesman said the organization had received a confirmation of the vice president's appearrance. It said Humphrey will arrive in Kansas City Tuesday night, Oct. 10 and will appear before the convention at 9:30 a.m. on Oct. 11.

More than 11,000 young farmers from over the nation are expected for the 40th annual convention.

Marines Crush Assault

SAIGON (AP) — Massive American firepower has broken the back of the Communists' month-long artillery siege of Con Thien and sent groups of North Vietnamese soldiers into retreat from abandoned gun pits, U.S. military authorities said today.

"We made it a Dien Bien Phu in reverse," Gen. William C. Westmoreland told a Washington Star reporter.

The U.S. commander said the North Vietnamese had suffered a severe setback with heavy casualties in their attempts to knock out Con Thien and other Marine outposts below the demilitarized zone.

The break in the allies' favor on the war's one semistabilized front followed up American aerial attacks on North Vietnam Tuesday as close as 10 miles to Red China. The raiders hit two bridges that the Pentagon had previously held off-limits. In all, U.S. Air Force and Navy squadrons flew 106 missions over the North. Spokesmen announced one plane was shot down.

The North Vietnamese, who had claimed they downed seven planes Tuesday, broadcast a declaration that they felled five more Wednesday. There was no immediate American comment.

Although the Communist fire on Con Thien slackened appreciably and aerial reconnaissance showed some groups pulling back, U.S. authorities said there was no sign of a general withdrawal of the 35,000 North Vietnamese troops estimated to be massed in and near the DMZ.

Westmoreland cautioned in an interview with The Associated Press that he expects renewed assaults against the Marine positions.

"I don't think the enemy has given up his aggressive campaign," the general said.

Dien Bien Phu, in the hills 180 miles west of Hanoi, was the site of France's final defeat in the Indochina war in 1954. Big guns manhandled to the heights by Ho Chi Minh's Communist-led troops battered the remenants of a French army into submission.

The Communists' attack on Con Thien, at times surpassing 1,000 rounds a day, was their most massive artillery operation since Dien Bien Phu.

Westmoreland has described the American response — aerial bombs and shells from both land-based and naval guns — as the greatest concentration of conventional firepower in history.

The U.S. Marine outposts are intended to block what some observers believe could be a large-scale attempt by North Vietnamese regulars to take over South Vietnam's northern provinces.

U. S. spokesmen said aeiral spotters have seen groups of retreating North Vietnamese soldiers. They said aerial photographs have shown abandoned enemy gunpits in the DMZ.

"There are all kinds of indications that we did one helluva lot of damage to them," said one ranking officer. "There is every indication that they are pulling back and that we broke their back thin time."

Westmoreland indicated that he expected any lull along the DMZ to be temporary.

"It appears the enemy had planned to eliminate Con Thien," the general said as he arrived in Da Nang, the Marines' northern headquarters, to confer with Lt. Gen. Robert Cushman Jr., U. S. Marine commander in Vietnam.

"A number of North vietnamese battalions were deployed against it. This served to create a target to the point where the enemy suffered great casualities, we are convinced. We can't prove it because there is no way to assess it. But I am confident their casualties were heavy."

4,100 Pounds of Clothing Collected for Flood Victims

More than 4,100 pounds of clothing has been collected in less than a week for flood victims of the Texas Rio Grande Valley at relief headquarters established last Wednesday in a vacant store at 135 East Front St. by Harry A. Buckles.

Prompted by concern for friends and personal ties in the Brownsville and Harlingen, Tex. during 12 years, Buckles undertook the clothing drive project last Wednesday.

Reports reaching Buckles indicated that flood victims, caught in the 30-inch rains following Hurricane Beulah were receiving food and lodging but needed clothing.

A pump at West's Saveway Service 836 West Malone, was damaged at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday when the door of a car driven by William T. Bell, 73, 509 Wilson, opened as he backed his automobile.

The car door was damaged also, police reported. No summons was issued.

In other activity, Ancel Gross, Sikeston was charged Tuesday with public intoxication.

Haywood Branch, Memphis, Tenn., was arrested early today on South Main and charged with public intoxication.

Mrs. Gary Abernathy, 305 Olive, reported to police today that a red 24" Western Flyer bicycle had been in her yard for the past several days.

Poverty Bill Compromise Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected by a 47-42 vote today a cut-down $925-million compromise emergency job proposal as part of the antipoverty bill.

Supporters of the later job proposal had thrown their backing to the compromise, conceding that the original plan probably would be defeated.

The outcome of this test on the emergency job rider was a victory for the Johnson Administration, which opposed such a proposal in any form because of its budget-busting implications.

However, many Republicans and nearly all Souther Democrats joined with some administration supporters to turn back the compromise, which was offered by Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., author of the original $2.8-billion job plan, urged all of his followers to back the Prouty proposal.

17 New Firms Join C. of C.

With less than half of the Chamber of Commerce members reporting in the membership drive that opened Tuesday 17 new firms have been recruited, Richard Pinkerton, manager, said today.

The drive will continue through the week.

New members include Cowan and Holman Construction Co., Dr. Robert B. Bennett, Hux and Green attorneys, Moore's Missouri Co., and Palmer Color TV - Stereo Sales & Service.

A general membership meeting is set for Oct. 18 at the Holiday Inn.

Criminal Lawyer Defends Court

Martin Green, St. Louis criminal attorney, defended a United States supreme court ruling on admission of evidence for a defendant, the Kiwanis club Tuesday night at the Holiday Inn. President Roger Sherman presided.

Disputing a statement by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, Green said that the crime rate has risen. Green said law enforcement officers, are reporting more crimes due to improved methods.

The club announced that Jerry Hampton is Scoutmaster for troop 43, replacing Dr. Bill Dillion, who served three years.

Christmas fruitcakes, annual club project, are on sale.

Grease Flareup Brings Firemen

NEW MADRID -- The fire department was called at 12:40 p.m. yesterday to the Country Club.

Flaming grease on a kitchen stove caused a fire. Minor smoke and water damage was done to the kitchen and dining room.

Claude Keasler Gets Nod for ASCS Post

WASHINGTON AP - Claude Keasler, 46, of Parma, Mo., was recommended Tuesday by Missouri's senators for appointment to the Missouri State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Sens. Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long said Rep. Paul C. Jones, D-Mo., concurred in the recommendation.

Keasler would fill a vacancy caused by the death of A. L. (Abbie) Story of Charleston, Mo., in a plane crash Sept. 20.

Keasler has served as a farmer fieldman of the ASCS since 1961 in nine Southeast Missouri counties.

He has been a member of the Elk township ASCS committee since 1953 and a member of the county committee five years.

Keasler and his wife Wanda, live on a farm on route one, Parma. They have one daughter, Karen, an interior decorating student in Dallas.

Keasler was one of three men nominated at a meeting of delecommittees in Poplar Bluff.

W. R. (Dick) Phillips, New Madrid county farmer, was the nominee recommended by the delegates at the meeting called by Mrs. Mable Abbington of Poplar Bluff.

Phillips received the majority of votes from delegates.

The other candidate nominated was Charles Albert Farris of Braggadocio, Pemiscot County.

Since the other two members of the state ASC committee are from North Missouri, it was the hope of area Democrats that a Southeast Missourian would be placed on the committee to represent Southeast Missouri.

GOP Plans To Select 1968 Ticket

BENTON -- The Scott County Republican committee last night decided to have a special meeting to organize local Republican ticket for the coming election year.

The meeting will be the night of Oct. 21. The time and place will be announced later.

Since this is a grassroots meeting, those attending have been requested to bring a list of prospective candidates.

X15 Sends Speed Mark Higher

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) - An X15 rocket plane has set a winged-craft record of 4,534 miles an hour approaching speeds future aerospace craft will fly.

Air Force Maj. William J. Knight streaked almost seven times the speed of sound Tuesday in an eight-minute flight, skimming along the fringe of the atmosphere at 99,000 feet.

It was 284 miles an hour faster than the record he set in an X15 last Nov. 18 and augured well for upcoming attempts to reach 5,000 m.p.h., eight times sound's velocity.

This is the speed scientists figure maneuverable craft will need to shuttle between satellites and bases on the ground.

The workhorse X15, a stubby-winged, 50-foot-long dart-powered by a 60,000-pound-thrust rocket engine, has been shooting toward this goal since it started flying seven years ago.

Beatles Reject Million-Dollar Single Day Offer

LONDON (AP) - The Beatles are not interested in an offer of $1 million for one day's work in the United States, a spokesman said today.

The reason: It would mean appearing personally at the 55,000-seat Shea Stadium in New York.

"We will definitely not accept the offer," said the spokesman. "The money doesn't matter. It is simply impossible to put across in any stadium or hall the kind of music the Beatles are playing these days."

The Beatles' current style has been described as avant garde pop, with mystical Indian overtones.

The $1 million was offered by American promoter Sidney Bernstein, now visiting London. He told reporters he believed he could fill the huge stadium for each of two Beatles' concerts in one day.

Bernstein promoted the first Beatles' tour of the United States in 1964.

More than a year ago the four Beatles quietly abandoned the frantic one-night stands that had driven teen-agers around the world to hysteria and made the Beatles multimillionaires.

They have since concentrated on producing records and making television films.

Santiago Hits Homer In Third

BOSTON (AP) -- A home run by Boston pitcher Jose Santiago offset a St. Louis run earlier in the third inning to earn the Red Sox a 1-1 tie through the first four and one half innings of today's opening World Series battle with the Cardinals at Fenway Park.

Santiago's homer was the second hit off Cardinal right-hander Bob Gibson and came with one out in the bottom of the third. First baseman George Scott singled for the first hit with one down in the second.

St. Louis scored for a 1-0 lead in the top of the third when Lou Brock led off with a single, moved to third on a double by Curt Flood and scampered across the plate on a groundout by Roger Maris.

Santiago worked out of further danger by getting Orlando Cepeda to foul out to third baseman Dalton Jones and retiring Mike Shannon on a pop fly to second baseman Jerry Adair following a walk to Tim McCarver.

The Cardinals also threatened in the second when Shannon and Julian Javier hit back to back singles with nine out, but the threat died as Gibson bounced into an inning ending double play.

The score by innings:

Red Sox 0 0 1 0 x --	1	3	0

Gibson and McCarver; Santiago and R. Gibson.

Greeks Arrest Publisher

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek military government today placed under house arrest Mrs. Helen Vlachou, the newspaper publisher charged with insulting the junta. She was the second prominent Greek ordered confined this week.

Deposed Premier Panayiotis Kanellopoulos was placed under guard in his home Monday night after he twice denounced the five-month-old government.

A man in civilian clothes, assumed to be a member of the Greek security police, stopped visitors as they tried to enter Mrs. Vlachou's apartment, telling them, "Mrs. Vlachou will see no one today." A source close to the 56-year-old publisher said, "Her house and papers are being searched by police and her telephone has been cut."

A phone call to her house, a block from the palace of King Constantine, brought no response.

Mrs. Vlachou was charged with insulting the junta after she was quoted as calling the ruling officers "mediocre and ignorant people" in an interview with the Turin newspaper La Stampa.

Mrs. Vlachou ceased publication of her two conservative newspapers, Kathmerini and Messimvrini, to protest the army's April 21 coup d'etat.

She was arrested on the defamation charge last Thursday but was released after four hours of questioning for a trial at an unspecified date.

Girl's Death Sets off Frost Freaking' Probe

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - "Frost freaking"-inhaling a chemical spray used to chill cocktail glasses - is under investigation by the State Consumer Protection Department after the death of an 11-year-old girl.

Lucie R. White of Greenwich inhaled so much of the chemical that it froze her larynx and blocked her breathing, according to the Greenwich medical examiner.

The girl collapsed and died Monday night at her home after breathing in the chemical vapor from a balloon which her 17-year-old brother, John, had filled from an aerosol container, police said.

Police Chief Stephen M. Baran Jr. of Greenwich said the department's youth division had received many reports recently of the latest teen-age fad.

Unlike most drugs, the chilling spray can be bought by children and "misused to the point where it becomes dangerous-and, as in this case, lethal," Baran said.

There have been reports that some Yale students have been using the spray to get "high," but the New Haven Police Department said Tuesday it had no evidence that the practice was prevalent in New Haven.

650 Bankers Will Meet In Sikeston on Oct. 11

More than 650 bankers are expected to attend the annual meeting of group six of the Missouri bankers association Oct. 11 at the Holiday Inn.

Harold J. Uding, executive vice president, Bank of Ste. Genevieve, is group chairman, and J. Layton Pickard, executive vice president, First Security State Bank, Charleston, is secretary.

Registration will begin at 3 p.m. with the business session called to order by Uding at 4:30 p.m.

Speakers at the afternoon session will be Richard H. Swaim, president of the Missouri Bankers Association and president, The First National Bank, Cape Girardeau; Adrian Harmon, chairman of the MBA Committee on long term financing for industrial expansion and executive vice president, Citizens Bank, Warrensburg; and Van W. Cooper, chairman of the MBA's committee on automation and assistant vice president, City National Bank & Trust Company, Kansas City.

The night session will get underway with a social hour at 6 p.m. followed by a banquet.

The invocation will be given by The Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The speaker will be Marvin McLellan, humorist and lecturer from Lexington, Miss., whose topic will be "Needed Second Mile Men."

In charge of arrangements is Jack K. Hogan, executive vice president of the Security National Bank.

Group six of the Missouri Bankers Association is comprised of 19 southeast Missouri counties, Bollinger, Butler, Cape Girardeau, Carter, Dunklin, Iron, Madison, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Perry, Reynolds, Ripley, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, Scott, Shannon, Stoddard and Wayne.

Officers of the MBA in addition to Swaim are Roger G. Wilson, vice president pro tem and treasurer and president, Bank of Weston; and Felix LeGrand, executive manager, Columbia.

$679,947 Approved for Year Around Head Start Program

PORTAGEVILLE -- A $679,947 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington, D.C., for the year-around Head Start program in the Bootheel was announced Tuesday by Missouri senators.

The grant to the University of Missouri is for a program for about 500 children, 3-6 from low-income families over eight months in Pemiscot, New Madrid, Dunklin, Scott, Mississippi and Stoddard counties.

The 12 centers will be at Sikeston, Bloomfield, Portageville, North Lilbourn, Morehouse, Wardell, Hayti, Caruthersville, Senath - Hornersville, Reeves, Kennett and Campbell.

The programs -- both year-around and summer -- were formerly administered by the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, the OEO's Bootheel agency.

However, the summer Head Start program was taken away from DAEOC by the regional OEO office to Kansas City when regional OEO Director Don Thomason ruled that the DAEOC board of directors could not function effectively as a unit.

The DAEOC board and the regional director have had disputes since DAEOC was formed.

The summer Head Start program was administered by the Semo Development Corporation.

In August the DAEOC board was notified by the Kansas City office that the University of Missouri was interested in taking over the program in the Bootheel.

The university instead of DAEOC was awarded the program on the basis of the report of an OEO evaluation team, which made a study of DAEOC's administration.

The year-around program will start Monday with a three-day orientation for teachers and auxiliary personnel at Portageville.

Preregistration of Head Start children will be Oct. 12-13 at the centers, with classes scheduled to begin Oct. 16.

A supplemental grant of $80,000 is expected from OEO within the two weeks, after which two more centers are expected to be opened.

The university will assume the responsibility of training teachers, aides and administrative personnel. The university's schools of medicine, home economics and education and department of sociology will participate in the training, evaluation and research of the project.

The staff personnel at the centers includes 29 teachers, 50 low-income educational aides, 12 low-income social service aides, 16 low-income cooks and aides, 16 nurses and low-income nurses aides and 12 secretaries.

The central office staff includes four secretaries, a social service director, an educational director, a Head Start director and an office manager.

The psychological program will have a clinical psychologist, a psychological examiner and a counselor under the direction of Dr. Sam Thornton, clinical psychologist, who will serve as consultant. Graduate students of the University of Missouri might participate in these evaluations.

There will be 29 classes meeting one session a day five days a week. Each session will be five hours.

The staff consists of 29 teachers, 21 paid professionals, 123 paid nonprofessionals of which 72 will be parents of Head Start children, 86 volunteers of which 37 will be parents of Head Start children, 12 target area volunteer nonprofessionals and 24 volunteer professionals.

Two-thirds of those employed in the program will be from low-

Second Fatality in Two-Car Collision

Mrs. Frank Heubel, 69, South Bend, Ind., died Saturday night in the Poplar Bluff hospital as the result of injuries in a two-car collision last Wednesday on highway 67, seven miles east of Fisk.

She was a passenger in a 1961 Studebaker, driven by her husband, who also was fatally injured when he lost control of his car, it went over the center line, striking a 1967 Chevrolet driven by Harry Klug, 74.

Klug and his wife, Helen, were taken to the Lucy Lee hospital, Poplar Bluff. He received a broken leg and cuts and his wife cuts and internal injuries.

Two persons were injured Tuesday at 8:15 a.m. on highway 164, three miles west of Steele, when a 1957 Chevrolet, driven by Margaret Shubert 22, Hayti, collided with another car when he attempted to make a left turn.

His car was struck in the left side by a 1960 Ford dump truck driven by Frank Sheehy, 54, Poplar Bluff.

Shubert and a passenger, Alice Sprouse, 27, Steele, were treated by a steele physician for bruises and released.

Odis Williams 58, Sikeston, was treated by a Sikeston physician for neck injuries Tuesday he received at 5:45 p.m. on Scott county route A, two miles north of Benton. His parked car was struck by a 1965 Pontiac, driven by Gilbert Robert, 30, Benton.

Williams stopped to talk to a friend after he had parked his 1961 Ford over the crest of a hill. The Robert car was unable to stop in time to avoid a collision.

Williams was treated for a back and neck injury.

Cosmonaut Rates Moon Landing 5 To 10 Years off

MOSCOW (AP) — On the 10th anniversary of the first Sputnik, a Soviet cosmonaut predicted today that man will land on the moon within five or 10 years.

The U.S. space program calls for a landing in slightly over two years.

Konstantin P. Feoktistov, a scientist who orbited the earth three years ago, made his prediction amid anniversary articles in the Soviet press that emphasized prospects for manned stations in orbit but made a moon landing a later priority.

This tended to support earlier indications that the Soviet Union is no longer, if it ever was, racing the United States to the moon.

Feoktistov listed a manned laboratory in orbit as first among coming space developments, then a moon landing, then "starting to Venus and Mars."

Humphrey to Address FFA Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert Humphrey has accepted an invitation to address the Future Farmers of America in Kansas City Oct. 11, the national FFA headquarters announced here Tuesday.

An FFA spokesman said the organization had received a confirmation of the vice president's appearrance. It said Humphrey will arrive in Kansas City Tuesday night, Oct. 10 and will appear before the convention at 9:30 a.m. on Oct. 11.

More than 11,000 young farmers from over the nation are expected for the 40th annual convention.

Marines Crush Assault

SAIGON (AP) — Massive American firepower has broken the back of the Communists' month-long artillery siege of Con Thien and sent groups of North Vietnamese soldiers into retreat from abandoned gun pits, U.S. military authorities said today.

"We made it a Dien Bien Phu in reverse," Gen. William C. Westmoreland told a Washington Star reporter.

The U.S. commander said the North Vietnamese had suffered a severe setback with heavy casualties in their attempts to knock out Con Thien and other Marine outposts below the demilitarized zone.

The break in the allies' favor on the war's one semistablized front followed up American aerial attacks on North Vietnam Tuesday as close as 10 miles to Red China. The raiders hit two bridges that the Pentagon had previously held off-limits. In all, U.S. Air Force and Navy squadrons flew 106 missions over the North. Spokesmen announced one plane was shot down.

The North Vietnamese, who had claimed they downed seven planes Tuesday, broadcast a declaration that they felled five more Wednesday. There was no immediate American comment.

Although the Communist fire on Con Thien slackened appreciably and aerial reconnaissance showed some groups pulling back, U.S. authorities said there was no sign of a general withdrawal of the 35,000 North Vietnamese troops estimated to be massed in and near the DMZ.

Westmoreland cautioned in an interview with The Associated Press that he expects renewed assaults against the Marine positions.

"I don't think the enemy has given up his aggressive campaign," the general said.

Dien Bien Phu, in the hills 180 miles west of Hanoi, was the site of France's final defeat in the Indochina war in 1954. Big guns manhandled to the heights by Ho Chi Minh's Communist-led troops battered the remenants of a French army into submission.

The Communists' attack on Con Thien, at times surpassing 1,000 rounds a day, was their most massive artillery operation since Dien Bien Phu.

Westmoreland has described the American response — aerial bombs and shells from both land-based and naval guns — as the greatest concentration of conventional firepower in history.

The U.S. Marine outposts are intended to block what some observers believe could be a large-scale attempt by North Vietnamese regulars to take over South Vietnam's northern provinces.

U. S. spokesmen said aeiral spotters have seen groups of retreating North Vietnamese soldiers. They said aerial photographs have shown abandoned enemy gunpits in the DMZ.

"There are all kinds of indications that we did one helluva lot of damage to them," said one ranking officer. "There is every indication that they are pulling back and that we broke their back thin time."

Westmoreland indicated that he expected any lull along the DMZ to be temporary.

"It appears the enemy had planned to eliminate Con Thien," the general said as he arrived in Da Nang, the Marines' northern headquarters, to confer with Lt. Gen. Robert Cushman Jr., U. S. Marine commander in Vietnam.

"A number of North vietnamese battalions were deployed against it. This served to create a target to the point where the enemy suffered great casualities, we are convinced. We can't prove it because there is no way to assess it. But I am confident their casualties were heavy."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

It was 10 years ago today at 7:30 p.m. that the Soviet Union fired into orbit Sputnik, the world's first man made satellite.

This marks the beginning of the second decade of the Space Age. This is the decade in which the United States is committed to put a man on the moon.

Sputnik produced many changes.

It shocked the people in the United States to their heels.

The complacency of the Eisenhower administration was broken.

Before Sputnik the peaceful pace of the administration seemed to fit the national mood. It had been a period of consolidation of gains and relaxation after years of innovative social programs.

After Sputnik the American people immediately lost any desire to rest on their oars.

Vice President Richard Nixon expressed pleasure at an Oklahoma City meeting of editorial writers about the effect of Sputnik on the Eisenhower administration.

He explained that the President had been under heavy pressure to maintain a program of rigid economy in the national government.

The competition from Sputnik, he explained, relieved this pressure and would permit the administration to spend in order to try to catch up with and pass the Russians, if possible, in space achievements.

There is no doubt but that Sputnik vastly increased spending by the federal government. The pace continues at an intensified rate.

There are many critics in both political parties.

Regularly they rise to protest that "if the United States can spend billions to put a man on the moon surely they can find enough money" to do everything from killing rats in slums to helping the mentally retarded.

Nobody knows the benefits from putting a man on the moon but they probably will be far reaching -- affecting both the national defense and possibly having many peaceful applications.

The competition of Russia and other countries cannot be ignored. The challenge must be met and the uncertainties -- profitable for us or not -- must be resolved. It is academic to argue otherwise.

Yes, the prospect is for more spending in the next decade.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey probably is as happy about it now as Nixon was 10 years ago in Oklahoma City.

At any rate it fits in well with the philosophy of the Great Society.

JEWISH HOLY DAYS

Oct. 5, 1967, is Tishri 1, 5728, on the Hebrew calendar -- the first day of the seventh month -- and thus will be observed as Rosh Hashanah, or the Jewish New Year. Rosh Hashanah is second in importance only to Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement), which falls this year on Saturday, Oct. 14. The 10-day period from Rosh Hashanah to Yom Kippur is known as the High Holy Days, or Days of Awe.

Among Jews everywhere, Rosh Hashanah is revered as the day of judgment, when all the people of the earth pass before God and are marked in the "Book of Life" or in the "Book of Death." A distinctive feature of the New Year is the blowing of a shofar (ram's horn trumpet) to summon Jews to their penitential observance. Yom Kippur is a day of prayer for forgiveness of sins committed during the year.

Israel's stunning military victory over its Arab neighbors doubtless will be a major preoccupation of Jews during their High Holy Days meditation and prayer. Numerous observers have expressed concern lest Israel, whose post-war boundaries contain almost as many Arabs as Jews, become a repressive garrison state. And George Friedmann, a French Jewish writer, suggested another danger in his recently published book, The End of the Jewish People? Friedmann warned that "The people of the Bible, after three thousand years of tribulations and persecutions, may contribute to their own destruction in their recovered home by surrendering to an imperious and undiscriminating mass culture."

Are they true or false?

For example: Senator Peter Dominick of Colorado charges the rigging of Defense Contracts and goes on to document his charges.

Is there nothing that can be done?

We wonder why magazines change their format just because a new magazine seems to be getting circulation.

Life became a good and great magazine when it was a feature magazine. Now it has gone to editorial matter.

The Saturday Evening Post in its heyday was a famous fiction magazine. When it changed and became a magazine of articles and managers it went the way of all .

Esquire studied art as a magazine for men then became a fiction and style magazine. It's circulation has faded away.

Now it's Playboy that is the top in circulation and advertising. Let's see how long before it wants to be the bearer of messages and goes like Colliers.

DEPENDS ON WHAT YOU ARE TIRED OF

In a speech at a printers convention in Colorado Springs recently, Vice President Hubert Humphrey complained that "tired people" are saying "we can't afford to meet our national committments abroad and at the same time build schools, train teachers and open opportunities to the poor at home."

He said that neither he nor President Johnson agrees with these "tired people."

The vice president is right -- there are a lot of tired people in this country, so writes Editor Wes Izzard. . . .

They are tired of big debt and big spending.

They are tired of high prices and high taxes.

They are tired of riots in the streets and muggings in the alleys.

They are tired of teachers strikes and control of their schools by Washington.

They are tired of waste in welfare and unlimited subsidies.

They are tired of government on the farm and government in business.

They are tired of trading with their enemies and building bridges to the Communists.

And most of all they are tired of a war which we are not doing all we can to win as quickly as we can.

Yes, Mr. Vice President, there are some very tired people in this country -- and they have good reasons to be tired considering the fact they aren't getting much help from their public servants in Washington, D. C.

The surest way to cure insomnia while riding home from work on the bus is to get a seat behind two brides discussing the new draperies they have just bought.

The average man will never understand economics until someone can successfully explain to him why a restaurant has to charge from $1 to $4 more for a dinner than it does for lunch, when the amount of food served is exactly the same— and only six hours older.

Few things give a man a more undue sense of importance than the act of making out his will— and it usually is an act. The greatest pleasure in having your will drawn up isn't the amount of money you have to leave— it's the number of names you plan to leave out.

The rush to live in the cities or suburbs has become so widespread that soon farmers may become so rare they will have to be protected by the Audubon Society or the government, just like the whooping crane.

You can be sure of one thing when the first woman finally climbs to the peak of Mt. Everest. When she departs, she will leave at least one glove behind— and some male member of the expedition will have to go back and retrieve it.

Four out of five sports fishermen either are henpecked or have homely wives. Why else would they spend all day out in a boat trying to outwit something as ignorant as a fish?

Wouldn't it be a wonderful world if every human heart were as beautiful in its autumn as every maple tree is in October?

WATCH YOUR HIDE!

Taxes have been described as the price we pay for civilization. By the look of things, we may be getting too civilized for our own good.

The editor of the Belton, Texas, Journal and Democrat, observes that: "More taxes seem to be coming. Something ought to give. . . and many of us hope the Great Society will be curtailed, while we are still alive to enjoy the society we already have. Some government economists look upon us taxpayers as sheep, figuring we can be sheared and sheared again. True, but you can skin a sheep only once."

If any of the voters are worrying about this, they might look in the mirror to find the causes of their concern. When we ask for federal handouts we get them for votes -- but we pay for them in taxes, and then some. When we send a tax dollar to Washington, the "free lunch" we get back may only be worth fifty cents, with political overhead, carrying charges and inflation taken out. If we want to give our wool for civilization, but keep our hides for ourselves, we can make our wishes known in the voting booth at every opportunity.

"We seriously question whether the proposed tax increase is either necessary or desirable. When the details of the President's budget become available, we urge that Congress examine them carefully to determine whether an amount equivalent to the proposed tax increase may instead be cut out of spending. Procedure along these lines would serve better than a tax increase to strengthen the economy, relieve pressure on interest rates, ease the inflationary trend, and preserve high levels of production and employment. Furthermore, we believe that a budget based on cutting or postponing all possible expenditures comes closer to meeting the public's preferences than one based on a tax increase."

DEADLINE FOR SHOWDOWN: Govt. Not Analyzing Massive National Surveys Of Union's Handling of Negro Workers

Washington, D. C.: -- It's not all in the streets. Some of this revolution is led by quiet men who do not believe cities are for burning. They get lost in the holocaust but not in the shuffle. They know the nerve centers of power, and are now pressuring inexorably deep behind the scenes -- for, unobserved by the people, this country now has reached the days which are the deadlines for action.

Among the quiet men are such as Fred O'Neal, soft-spoken Negro actor, president of Actor's Equity (AFL-CIO), the players' union of Broadway and points west, wherever there is a stage.

O'Neal -- unlike that comic who goes in for public fish-ins, quick laughs and flash headlines -- plays it for keeps and the long run. He wants integration of the entertainment world. And he wants the government to force it, or punish producers, on Broadway and in Hollywood -- or his union will shut down theaters, as it once did in the capital.

"There is no reason in the world of make believe," said he as we talked recently, "why a Negro can't play 'him' or 'her' in something like 'I Do! I Do!' which stars Mary Martin and Rober Preston. In a few minutes the audience would forget that the husband or the wife is a Negro. Why should Negroes not play the wife or Tevya the milkman in 'Fiddler on the Roof'? Remember, Pinky was played by a white girl. Dave Wayne played a Japanese. Jewish actors play British roles and Italians play Jewish roles."

O'Neal wants casting opened to Negro and Puerto Rican actors -- in any role. His test is their artistic competence. He added that "the producer's terminology, artistic decision, is a lot of junk." Mr. O'Neal wants action.

He, as leader of 14,000 east coast players and 2,500 in California, wants action. If the theatre doesn't move along with the revolution, he wants the government to move in, hard. Already he has convinced the New York State Commission on Human Rights to take on an investigator to survey the New York theatre strip and TV and movie production to learn the proportion of minority talent on the boards and before the cameras today.

He wants no "token" hiring of a Negro girl or two in a chorus line or among the spear carriers.

He wants what the other quiet men want -- an actual count and federal action. Now he and the others are getting that count -- not only on the boards but right across the land among millions of workers in 7,500 apprenticeship centers and scores of thousands of local unions. Just how they will get action is tomorrow's drama.

The quiet men, such as O'Neal and the NAACP's Roy Wilkins among others, are going into the courts, or are demanding that the government slash all federal funds from all projects, banks, subsidies, etc., unless the count shows up with considerable black.

That count now is being processed in Jeffersonville, Ind., says the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, now headed by Clifford Alexander, a Harvard educated Negro who once was Executive Director of the Harlem Youth Opportunities Unlimited (HARYOU).

Into the machines in Jeffersonville are going hundreds of reports known to the trade as EEO-2s. These are the forms on which all apprenticeship and training programs, jointly administered by labor and management, supposedly record the number of specified minority workers, now in the training mill -- Negro, Spanish American, American Indian, and Oriental. Also women. The law says we are all equal, including the ladies.

Deadling for filing those reports -- which should include statistics from unions which have hiring halls -- was Sept. 30.

There's another deadline due shortly -- Nov. 30 -- when some 50,000 local unions must also file (form EEO-3) to show how many specified minority members they have, and how many locals are segregated, how many minority workers have applied for membership, how many have been turned away.

Some unions are cooperating. There is Herman Kenin's American Federation of Musicians which in the past two years has integrated white and Negro locals in 20 cities -- and have some 18 to go. Not all Negro locals, mind you, wanted to be merged. They did not want to lose their identity, their status or their organization.

Some unions are battling bitterly. There was a heavy pressure on the White House not to permit the dispatch of the EEO-3 union reporting forms. Some unions such as a California plumbers Local 38 and a section of the Operating Engineers have gone into court to enjoin the government from examining their records.

The swift reply from the men who shy from black power shiboleths and black headlines is to pressure the government where it hurts -- Title Six as well as Title Seven of the Civil Rights Act.

Some time ago, Roy Wilkins dispatched a telegram to Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz demanding that the government cut funds off from all -- repeat ALL -- operations into which a single federal dollar flows if there is no real count and implementation. This burning up the wires can hit harder than burning up some cities. The law says, under Title Six, that no money can go into any project, any credit, any transaction directly or indirectly, where there is not full integration.

This means virtually all strata of American life and business -- be it the theatre and the entertainment world, which lives on bank credits, or massive construction, or urban renewal. This means -- everything.

The play's the thing -- and the quiet men plan to play it hard from now on.

DELEGATES OF GREAT STATURE

Amending the U. S. Constitution to provide direct voting for President would dispense completely with presidential electors, thus destroying their tremendous potential as public servants. The present Electoral College needs to be reformed; under it, electors are only straw men. But under the Congressional District Plan of naming presidential electors, they would be chosen by people who know them best and they would be citizens of stature instead of nonentities.

The direct vote plan was considered, much criticized and finally rejected by the Constitutional Convention of 1787. One of the delegates, George Mason of Virginia, said of this play: "It has been proposed that the election should be made by the people themselves; that it, that an act which ought to be performed by those who knowleast." Later a motion in the Convention that the President be elected by direct vote was rejected, seven states to three.

Under the Congressional District Plan, the qualifications of the nominees for the two electors representing the state and the elector from the district would be well known to the electorate. these electors would add to the prestige of the candidates of their respective parties.

After the election, the electors could constitute an unofficial committee influential in rendering important public services. Such a committee, with a wide range of activities open to it, would be a great force for good and a source of strength for the country's future. Full use would thus be made of the qualified men and women serving as presidential electors. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- If it hadn't been for hooky - playing and junketing congressmen, the administration would have passed its stopgap resolution continuing the budget through the month of October.

The resolution's defeat meant that ten government departments and a score of other agencies were without funds beginning the first of this week. Republicans and may Dixiecrats had taken house leaders by surprise and ganged up to ban the normally routine continuance of funds unless the administration agreed to slice $5 billion out of non-defense spending.

It was Secretary of the Treasury Henry Fowler who jeopardized his own funds by sending a group of congressmen junketing to Brazil. This increased the absentee vote and helped kill the resolution continuing the flow of government money. The six congressmen sent to attend the international monetary fund conference in Rio De Janeiro were:

Henry Reuss, Wis., Lud Ashley, Ohio, William Moorhead, Pa., Thomas Rees, Calif., all Democrats, with Seymour Halpern of New York, a Republican moderate, and William Brock, Tenn., a Republican conservative.

Most of the above are Ad congressmen, and the International Monetary Fund is an important organization. However, other delegates could have been found to attend it.

Other Democratic congressmen who played hooky during the crucial vote were: John Brademas, Ind., Hugh Carey, Brooklyn, Eligio De La Garza, Tex., Mike Feighan, Ohio, Edward Derwinski, Ill., James Corman, Calif., L. H. Fountain, N.C., Elliott Hagan, Ga., Edward Hebert, La., Sydney Herlong, Fla., Bob Jones, Ala., James Kee, W. Va., Thomas Morgan, Pa., John Moss, Calif., Mendell Rivers, S.C., John Bell Williams, Miss., Ed Willis, La., Lester Wolff, N.Y., Jim Wright, Tex.

Bill Green, D-Pa., an excellent congressman, was in Philadelphia. His office could give no reason why he was not around to vote. Andy Jacobs, another good congressman, was in Indiana on a speaking date. He didn't come back to vote.

Note -- Most observers agree with the 28 GOP freshmen that speaker McCormack allows too much goofing off, should hold sessions six days a week and crack down on absentees.

GREEK BEARS NO GIFTS

There were some interesting votes among those who stuck around Washington to vote on the stopgap finance resolution. One was Nick Galifianakis, the North Carolina Greek, a Democrat, who told friends when he was frantically running for election that he would never desert his humble origin as the son of a Greek immigrant; would vote for education, better housing, health and school lunches.

When the chips were down, however, Galifianakis voted to lop a big hunk of money from these projects. So did several moderate Republicans who usually vote for the underprivileged -- Charles Mathias, Md., William Gude, Md., Ogden Reid, N.Y.

Significantly, one Mississippian, Jamie Whitten, put up a fight the other way. He pointed out that there was $5 billion of unexpended funds stashed away in the defense department and there was no reason why schools, the school lunch program, housing, health and impacted - area schools should suffer because of the GOP economy drive.

"Everyone, including the President, is proceeding on the assumption that defense spending should not be touched in any way by economy moves," said Whitten. "Why should it be so inviolate if we have to cut federal spending?

"I know of $5 billion that the defense department now has in unexpended funds, which could be held up, without hurting Southeast Asia at all."

Most Democrats at the meeting agreed with Whitten that this $5 billion-- some said it ran as high as $7 billion -- could be "rep-programmed" for other purposes, so that Secretary McNamara could reduce future supplementary requests by that amount.

When the votes were counted, however, every Mississippi congressman voted the other way.

BLACKBOARD DEMONSTRATION

Most of the Dixiecrats who voted for the $5 billion cut are strong states righters. Yet curtailment of non - defense spending will seriously hit their states, for the southern states are more dependent on federal grants than any in the nation.

Rep. George Mahon, the tall, gaunt Texan who heads the House Appropriations Committee, explained this very carefully at a closed-door session of committee Democrats. He used a blackboard to demonstrate.

"If we agreed to this $5 billion cut, it could mean that one-third of the $15 billion would include spending by the agriculture department, aid to higher education, impacted - area school aid, the school lunch program and many other things.

"Obviously this is impossible. I've talked to Frank Bow," said Mahon, referring to the GOP congressman from Ohio and a leader in the economy fight against LBJ, "and pointed out these figures to him. But he won't listen. He's thinking about the next presidential campaign.

"If we approved this arbitrary $5 billion reduction in spending now," continued Mahon, "it would completely disrupt state budgets, which depend a great deal on federal spending in the non - defense field. Many state legislatures are not even in session at the present time."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

It was 10 years ago today at 7:30 p.m. that the Soviet Union fired into orbit Sputnik, the world's first man made satellite.

This marks the beginning of the second decade of the Space Age. This is the decade in which the United States is committed to put a man on the moon.

Sputnik produced many changes.

It shocked the people in the United States to their heels.

The complacency of the Eisenhower administration was broken.

Before Sputnik the peaceful pace of the administration seemed to fit the national mood. It had been a period of consolidation of gains and relaxation after years of innovative social programs.

After Sputnik the American people immediately lost any desire to rest on their oars.

Vice President Richard Nixon expressed pleasure at an Oklahoma City meeting of editorial writers about the effect of Sputnik on the Eisenhower administration.

He explained that the President had been under heavy pressure to maintain a program of rigid economy in the national government.

The competition from Sputnik, he explained, relieved this pressure and would permit the administration to spend in order to try to catch up with and pass the Russians, if possible, in space achievements.

There is no doubt but that Sputnik vastly increased spending by the federal government. The pace continues at an intensified rate.

There are many critics in both political parties.

Regularly they rise to protest that "if the United States can spend billions to put a man on the moon surely they can find enough money" to do everything from killing rats in slums to helping the mentally retarded.

Nobody knows the benefits from putting a man on the moon but they probably will be far reaching -- affecting both the national defense and possibly having many peaceful applications.

The competition of Russia and other countries cannot be ignored. The challenge must be met and the uncertainties -- profitable for us or not -- must be resolved. It is academic to argue otherwise.

Yes, the prospect is for more spending in the next decade.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey probably is as happy about it now as Nixon was 10 years ago in Oklahoma City.

At any rate it fits in well with the philosophy of the Great Society.

JEWISH HOLY DAYS

Oct. 5, 1967, is Tishri 1, 5728, on the Hebrew calendar -- the first day of the seventh month -- and thus will be observed as Rosh Hashanah, or the Jewish New Year. Rosh Hashanah is second in importance only to Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement), which falls this year on Saturday, Oct. 14. The 10-day period from Rosh Hashanah to Yom Kippur is known as the High Holy Days, or Days of Awe.

Among Jews everywhere, Rosh Hashanah is revered as the day of judgment, when all the people of the earth pass before God and are marked in the "Book of Life" or in the "Book of Death." A distinctive feature of the New Year is the blowing of a shofar (ram's horn trumpet) to summon Jews to their penitential observance. Yom Kippur is a day of prayer for forgiveness of sins committed during the year.

Israel's stunning military victory over its Arab neighbors doubtless will be a major preoccupation of Jews during their High Holy Days meditation and prayer. Numerous observers have expressed concern lest Israel, whose post-war boundaries contain almost as many Arabs as Jews, become a repressive garrison state. And George Friedmann, a French Jewish writer, suggested another danger in his recently published book, The End of the Jewish People? Friedmann warned that "The people of the Bible, after three thousand years of tribulations and persecutions, may contribute to their own destruction in their recovered home by surrendering to an imperious and undiscriminating mass culture."

DEPENDS ON WHAT YOU ARE TIRED OF

In a speech at a printers convention in Colorado Springs recently, Vice President Hubert Humphrey complained that "tired people" are saying "we can't afford to meet our national committments abroad and at the same time build schools, train teachers and open opportunities to the poor at home."

He said that neither he nor President Johnson agrees with these "tired people."

The vice president is right -- there are a lot of tired people in this country, so writes Editor Wes Izzard. . . .

They are tired of big debt and big spending.

They are tired of high prices and high taxes.

They are tired of riots in the streets and muggings in the alleys.

They are tired of teachers strikes and control of their schools by Washington.

They are tired of waste in welfare and unlimited subsidies.

They are tired of government on the farm and government in business.

They are tired of trading with their enemies and building bridges to the Communists.

And most of all they are tired of a war which we are not doing all we can to win as quickly as we can.

Yes, Mr. Vice President, there are some very tired people in this country -- and they have good reasons to be tired considering the fact they aren't getting much help from their public servants in Washington, D. C.

An elderly construction worker opened his lunch bucket, looked in and growled, "Cheese sandwiches! Always cheese sandwiches."

A fellow-worker sitting close by asked, "Why don't you ask your wife to make you some other kind?"

"Wife," said the elderly man. "Who's married? I make these sandwiches myself.

DEADLINE FOR SHOWDOWN: Govt. Not Analyzing Massive National Surveys Of Union's Handling of Negro Workers

Washington, D. C.: -- It's not all in the streets. Some of this revolution is led by quiet men who do not believe cities are for burning. They get lost in the holocaust but not in the shuffle. They know the nerve centers of power, and are now pressuring inexorably deep behind the scenes -- for, unobserved by the people, this country now has reached the days which are the deadlines for action.

Among the quiet men are such as Fred O'Neal, soft-spoken Negro actor, president of Actor's Equity (AFL-CIO), the players' union of Broadway and points west, wherever there is a stage.

O'Neal -- unlike that comic who goes in for public fish-ins, quick laughs and flash headlines -- plays it for keeps and the long run. He wants integration of the entertainment world. And he wants the government to force it, or punish producers, on Broadway and in Hollywood -- or his union will shut down theaters, as it once did in the capital.

"There is no reason in the world of make believe," said he as we talked recently, "why a Negro can't play 'him' or 'her' in something like 'I Do! I Do!' which stars Mary Martin and Robert Preston. In a few minutes the audience would forget that the husband or the wife is a Negro. Why should Negroes not play the wife or Tevya the milkman in 'Fiddler on the Roof'? Remember, Pinky was played by a white girl. Dave Wayne played a Japanese. Jewish actors play British roles and Italians play Jewish roles."

O'Neal wants casting opened to Negro and Puerto Rican actors -- in any role. His test is their artistic competence. He added that "the producer's terminology, artistic decision, is a lot of junk." Mr. O'Neal wants action.

He, as leader of 14,000 east coast players and 2,500 in California, wants action. If the theatre doesn't move along with the revolution, he wants the government to move in, hard. Already he has convinced the New York State Commission on Human Rights to take on an investigator to survey the New York theatre strip and TV and movie production to learn the proportion of minority talent on the boards and before the cameras today.

He wants no "token" hiring of a Negro girl or two in a chorus line or among the spear carriers.

He wants what the other quiet men want -- an actual count and federal action. Now he and the others are getting that count -- not only on the boards but right across the land among millions of workers in 7,500 apprenticeship centers and scores of thousands of local unions. Just how they will get action is tomorrow's drama.

The quiet men, such as O'Neal and the NAACP's Roy Wilkins among others, are going into the courts, or are demanding that the government slash all federal funds from all projects, banks, subsidies, etc., unless the count shows up with considerable black.

That count now is being processed in Jeffersonville, Ind., says the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, now headed by Clifford Alexander, a Harvard educated Negro who once was Executive Director of the Harlem Youth Opportunities Unlimited (HARYOU).

Into the machines in Jeffersonville are going hundreds of reports known to the trade as EEO-2s. These are the forms on which all apprenticeship and training programs, jointly administered by labor and management, supposedly record the number of specified minority workers, now in the training mill -- Negro, Spanish American, American Indian, and Oriental. Also women. The law says we are all equal, including the ladies.

Deadling for filing those reports -- which should include statistics from unions which have hiring halls -- was Sept. 30.

There's another deadline due shortly -- Nov. 30 -- when some 50,000 local unions must also file (form EEO-3) to show how many specified minority members they have, and how many locals are segregated, how many minority workers have applied for membership, how many have been turned away.

Some unions are cooperating. There is Herman Kenin's American Federation of Musicians which in the past two years has integrated white and Negro locals in 20 cities -- and have some 18 to go. Not all Negro locals, mind you, wanted to be merged. They did not want to lose their identity, their status or their organization.

Some unions are battling bitterly. There was a heavy pressure on the White House not to permit the dispatch of the EEO-3 union reporting forms. Some unions such as a California plumbers Local 38 and a section of the Operating Engineers have gone into court to enjoin the government from examining their records.

The swift reply from the men who shy from black power shiboleths and black headlines is to pressure the government where it hurts -- Title Six as well as Title Seven of the Civil Rights Act.

Some time ago, Roy Wilkins dispatched a telegram to Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz demanding that the government cut funds off from all -- repeat ALL -- operations into which a single federal dollar flows if there is no real count and implementation. This burning up the wires can hit harder than burning up some cities. The law says, under Title Six, that no money can go into any project, any credit, any transaction directly or indirectly, where there is not full integration.

This means virtually all strata of American life and business -- be it the theatre and the entertainment world, which lives on bank credits, or massive construction, or urban renewal. This means -- everything.

The play's the thing -- and the quiet men plan to play it hard from now on.

H. L. Hunt Says

DELEGATES OF GREAT STATURE

Amending the U. S. Constitution to provide direct voting for President would dispense completely with presidential electors, thus destroying their tremendous potential as public servants. The present Electoral College needs to be reformed; under it, electors are only straw men. But under the Congressional District Plan of naming presidential electors, they would be chosen by people who know them best and they would be citizens of stature instead of nonentities.

The direct vote plan was considered, much criticized and finally rejected by the Constitutional Convention of 1787. One of the delegates, George Mason of Virginia, said of this play: "It has been proposed that the election should be made by the people themselves; that it, that an act which ought to be performed by those who knowleast." Later a motion in the Convention that the President be elected by direct vote was rejected, seven states to three.

Under the Congressional District Plan, the qualifications of the nominees for the two electors representing the state and the elector from the district would be well known to the electorate. these electors would add to the prestige of the candidates of their respective parties.

After the election, the electors could constitute an unofficial committee influential in rendering important public services. Such a committee, with a wide range of activities open to it, would be a great force for good and a source of strength for the country's future. Full use would thus be made of the qualified men and women serving as presidential electors. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- If it hadn't been for hooky - playing and junketing congressmen, the administration would have passed its stopgap resolution continuing the budget through the month of October.

The resolution's defeat meant that ten government departments and a score of other agencies were without funds beginning the first of this week. Republicans and may Dixiecrats had taken house leaders by surprise and ganged up to ban the normally routine continuance of funds unless the administration agreed to slice $5 billion out of non-defense spending.

It was Secretary of the Treasury Henry Fowler who jeopardized his own funds by sending a group of congressmen junketing to Brazil. This increased the absentee vote and helped kill the resolution continuing the flow of government money. The six congressmen sent to attend the international monetary fund conference in Rio De Janeiro were:

Henry Reuss, Wis., Lud Ashley, Ohio, William Moorhead, Pa., Thomas Rees, Calif., all Democrats, with Seymour Halpern of New York, a Republican moderate, and William Brock, Tenn., a Republican conservative.

Most of the above are Ad congressmen, and the International Monetary Fund is an important organization. However, other delegates could have been found to attend it.

Other Democratic congressmen who played hooky during the crucial vote were: John Brademas, Ind., Hugh Carey, Brooklyn, Eligio De La Garza, Tex., Mike Feighan, Ohio, Edward Derwinski, Ill., James Corman, Calif., L. H. Fountain, N.C., Elliott Hagan, Ga., Edward Hebert, La., Sydney Herlong, Fla., Bob Jones, Ala., James Kee, W. Va., Thomas Morgan, Pa., John Moss, Calif., Mendell Rivers, S.C., John Bell Williams, Miss., Ed Willis, La., Lester Wolff, N.Y., Jim Wright, Tex.

Bill Green, D-Pa., an excellent congressman, was in Philadelphia. His office could give no reason why he was not around to vote. Andy Jacobs, another good congressman, was in Indiana on a speaking date. He didn't come back to vote.

Note -- Most observers agree with the 28 GOP freshmen that speaker McCormack allows too much goofing off, should hold sessions six days a week and crack down on absentees.

GREEK BEARS NO GIFTS

There were some interesting votes among those who stuck around Washington to vote on the stopgap finance resolution. One was Nick Galifianakis, the North Carolina Greek, a Democrat, who told friends when he was frantically running for election that he would never desert his humble origin as the son of a Greek immigrant; would vote for education, better housing, health and school lunches.

When the chips were down, however, Galifianakis voted to lop a big hunk of money from these projects. So did several moderate Republicans who usually vote for the underprivileged -- Charles Mathias, Md., William Gude, Md., Ogden Reid, N.Y.

Significantly, one Mississippian, Jamie Whitten, put up a fight the other way. He pointed out that there was $5 billion of unexpended funds stashed away in the defense department and there was no reason why schools, the school lunch program, housing, health and impacted - area schools should suffer because of the GOP economy drive.

"Everyone, including the President, is proceeding on the assumption that defense spending should not be touched in any way by economy moves," said Whitten. "Why should it be so inviolate if we have to cut federal spending?

"I know of $5 billion that the defense department now has in unexpended funds, which could be held up, without hurting Southeast Asia at all."

Most Democrats at the meeting agreed with Whitten that this $5 billion-- some said it ran as high as $7 billion -- could be "rep-programmed" for other purposes, so that Secretary McNamara could reduce future supplementary requests by that amount.

When the votes were counted, however, every Mississippi congressman voted the other way.

BLACKBOARD DEMONSTRATION

Most of the Dixiecrats who voted for the $5 billion cut are strong states righters. Yet curtailment of non - defense spending will seriously hit their states, for the southern states are more dependent on federal grants than any in the nation.

Rep. George Mahon, the tall, gaunt Texan who heads the House Appropriations Committee, explained this very carefully at a closed-door session of committee Democrats. He used a blackboard to demonstrate.

"If we agreed to this $5 billion cut, it could mean that one-third of the $15 billion would include spending by the agriculture department, aid to higher education, impacted - area school aid, the school lunch program and many other things.

"Obviously this is impossible. I've talked to Frank Bow," said Mahon, referring to the GOP congressman from Ohio and a leader in the economy fight against LBJ, "and pointed out these figures to him. But he won't listen. He's thinking about the next presidential campaign.

"If we approved this arbitrary $5 billion reduction in spending now," continued Mahon, "it would completely disrupt state budgets, which depend a great deal on federal spending in the non - defense field. Many state legislatures are not even in session at the present time."

Sweating Stone

The marble statue in the Lincoln Memorial is usually washed when the weather turns suddenly from cold to warm. The change in temperature causes the stone to perspire and grime rises to the surface, and this must be removed.

Stone tree trunks are so common near Piggott, Ark., that many have been used as tombstones.

Past Matrons, Patrons Honored

Sikeston chapter 137, Order of the Eastern Star, met Thursday with the worthy matron, Mrs. Virginia Nickell, and the worthy patron, Clarence Sadler, in the east.

Mickey Holified, chairman of the ways and means committee, reported on a toothbrush sale.

A thank you card was read from the family of Henry Nicholson for the courtesies shown during their bereavement.

It was reported that Harry Dudley is in the Missouri Delta Community hospital. Mrs. Mary Isaac is in the Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau, and has had minor surgery. Worthy matron, Virginia Nickell, reported she had received a letter from Mrs. Nell McReynolds reporting on her stay in Hot Springs, Ark.

Mrs. Connie Lewis was welcomed back to chapter after being absent due to illness.

An invitation from Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Sloan to attend the wedding of their daughter, Becky, to Harold Beaird on Oct. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Northside Church of Christ was read.

The Candace Green club will meet Friday night and Morley will have a skit.

Members were reminded that starting with the next meeting, Oct. 12, the meetings will start at 7:30 p.m.

An invitation was given by the Illmo chapter to attend their meeting Nov. 16. Slides will be shown.

After the close of chapter, a program was given honoring the past worthy matrons and past worthy patrons. They were asked to form a semi-circle in the east with different officers taking part in the program.

August Butler, a past worthy patron, recited a humorous poem.

Refreshments were served in the dining room. The hosts and hostesses were: Neva Mae Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Clell Gilbert, Sue Collier, Nell McReynolds, Bess Turner, Claude Turner, Willa Dee Bailey and Ruth Malone.

Australians Will Speak to WMU

The general meeting of the Woman's Missionary Union of the First Baptist church will meet at 12:15 p.m. Thursday for a covered dish luncheon at the church.

The Rev. Alan Reid and Noel Wales, Australian Baptists conducting revival services at the church, will speak during a mission study program.

Sweating Stone

The marble statue in the Lincoln Memorial is usually washed when the weather turns suddenly from cold to warm. The change in temperature causes the stone to perspire and grime rises to the surface, and this must be removed.

Stone tree trunks are so common near Piggott, Ark., that many have been used as tombstones.

Past Matrons, Patrons Honored

Sikeston chapter 137, Order of the Eastern Star, met Thursday with the worthy matron, Mrs. Virginia Nickell, and the worthy patron, Clarence Sadler, in the east.

Mickey Holified, chairman of the ways and means committee, reported on a toothbrush sale.

A thank you card was read from the family of Henry Nicholson for the courtesies shown during their bereavement.

It was reported that Harry Dudley is in the Missouri Delta Community hospital. Mrs. Mary Isaac is in the Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau, and has had minor surgery. Worthy matron, Virginia Nickell, reported she had received a letter from Mrs. Nell McReynolds reporting on her stay in Hot Springs, Ark.

Mrs. Connie Lewis was welcomed back to chapter after being absent due to illness.

An invitation from Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Sloan to attend the wedding of their daughter, Becky, to Harold Beaird on Oct. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Northside Church of Christ was read.

The Candace Green club will meet Friday night and Morley will have a skit.

Members were reminded that starting with the next meeting, Oct. 12, the meetings will start at 7:30 p.m.

An invitation was given by the Illmo chapter to attend their meeting Nov. 16. Slides will be shown.

After the close of chapter, a program was given honoring the past worthy matrons and past worthy patrons. They were asked to form a semi-circle in the east with different officers taking part in the program.

August Butler, a past worthy patron, recited a humorous poem.

Refreshments were served in the dining room. The hosts and hostesses were: Neva Mae Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Clell Gilbert, Sue Collier, Nell McReynolds, Bess Turner, Claude Turner, Willa Dee Bailey and Ruth Malone.

Australians Will Speak to WMU

The general meeting of the Woman's Missionary Union of the First Baptist church will meet at 12:15 p.m. Thursday for a covered dish luncheon at the church.

The Rev. Alan Reid and Noel Wales, Australian Baptists conducting revival services at the church, will speak during a mission study program.

Malden In Key Game At Portageville., Cape Host To Jackson In North Tilt

Another week of high school football action begins early as Cape Girardeau Central High's Tigers will play host to Jackson Thursday in their first northern conference game. They raced to a 4-0 mark with wins over such powers as Carbondale, Ill., Mayfield, Ky., and only last week St. Louis county power Kirkwood. Jackson boasts a 1-1 won-loss record in the conference and are 2-2 overall.

Other area squads see action Friday night and with the top attraction at Portageville, where Malden visits in a vital southern conference game at Poplar Bluff, where Blytheville calls. Three undefeated powers broke the 100 point offensive barrier last week. Poplar Bluff vaulted over Jackson 40-7 and pushed to 140 points offense. Sikeston added 33 points against Kennett to go to 108. Portageville racked up 36 points against East Prairie last week and tied Bluff with 140 offensive points.

Four undefeated teams remain in the district. Three are in the north. Poplar Bluff, Sikeston and Cape hold 4-0 marks. Dexter's southern division entry has posted 4-0.

The Bearcats, unbeaten and untied with a 3-0 mark in conference play, meets East Prairie Friday night and Hayti is at Chaffee in the only other conference matches slated in the district.

Portageville, a 14-12 upset victim of Dexter two weeks ago, will battle for its league life. A loss would all but eliminate the Bulldogs from the race, after suffering their conference setback against the Cats. The Green Wave is 1-0 in conference play and was the pre-South favorite to sweep the title.

A Cat victory would maintain them in the driver's seat in the south. Games remain with Chaffee and Malden.

In non - league action, Caruthersville will be host to the Charleston Bluejays. Piggott, Ark., will be at Gideon.

Kennett and Sikeston are idle this week.

Schoendienst Series Views

BOSTON AP -- Manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals looks for the 1967 World Series to go six or seven games and says that he doesn't know who will win but "it will be a good Series."

The St. Louis party arrived in Boston late Monday for the opening battle for the world championship Wednesday at Fenway Park.

When told that many oddsmakers were establishing the Cardinals as the favorite, Schoendienst said, "That's nice, but odds don't make any difference."

He added, "If we should lose the first game, we'd be the underdog."

Schoendienst, who played second base for the Cardinals when they opposed Boston in the 1946 Series, said his team is in good physical condition for the fall classic.

He nominated hard - throwing Bob Gibson, a right-hander who won 20 or more games in 1965 and 1966, as the Redbirds pitcher in today's opener. Gibson, who broke his right leg in July, has pitched impressively since rejoining the club in September.

To make room for Gibson on the Cardinals' 25-man series roster, the Redbirds took John Romano, No. 3 catcher, off the active list. Romano, obtained from the Chicago White Sox before the 1967 season started, batted .121 in 58 appearances for St. Louis.

The Cardinals never let the pressure of first place bother them in rolling to the earliest National League title since 1955.

With first baseman Orlando Cepeda taking over as a field leader and clubhouse cheerleader, the Cardinals moved into the National League lead in late July and won the championship going away.

If the team had one trademark, it was the spirit generated by Cepeda, who led the club in hitting until a September slump saw his average drop to .325.

Schoendienst, whose team won a pennant in his third season as manager, announced last week that Gibson would be his starting pitcher. When he learned that Boston would be the Series opponent, he added that Dick Hughes and Nelson Briles would pitch games two and three. "After that," he added, "I just don't know."

In Gibson, the Cardinals thrown a veteran pitcher with Series competition at Boston; in Hughes, the Redbirds will use a 29-year-old rookie who rolled to a 16-6 record this season, and in Briles, St. Louis will throw a relief pitcher who became a starter at mid-season and won nine straight games. All are right-handers.

If the regular season is any criterion, the Cardinals might do better in Boston than in friendly Busch Stadium on the St. Louis riverfront. St. Louis had a 52-28 record on the road while winning 49 and losing 32 at home.

And perhaps in predicting the Series might go seven games, Schoendienst had in the back of his mind the fact that St. Louis never has lost a seven-game Series in 10 appearances. The Cardinals have won seven world titles.

Local Boxer Making Good

Greg Harrington

Greg Harrington, a winner of 37 professional fights and numerous Golden Gloves titles in his boxing career is beginning to dawn on the professional boxing world.

Harrington, who is a Houston resident, formerly of Sikeston, turned to the professional ranks at 14 while fighting in the 115-pound bantam division.

The former Sikeston resident started boxing in the city boxing club and has advanced to the state and national finals in seven years.

Mike Blacker is given most of the credit for Harrington's advance. Blacker has worked with him since his entry in the local club and trained him to the finals of the nationals. Among his last fights as an amateur was a technical knockout win in the final bout for first place.

Another man given credit for Harrington's success is Tom Crites, his manager who has seen the 17-year-old fight some of the top challengers and saw him suffer his only defeat in Madison Square Garden in New York six months ago.

Harrington's trainer, Dan Williamson, who has been at ringside with many top fighters says flatly Harrington will gain the lightweight championship.

"I think that he will meet Dick Tiger before the 1968 boxing campaign is completed," he said.

Harrington predicts that Griffin can beat Clay and Liston.

Williamson calls Harrington "the greatest puncher since Lou Jenkins, former lightweight champion."

Harrington is expected to fight Joe Brown at Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis soon.

Harrington's mother teaches in the Sikeston school system.

So. . . Maybe in the near future Sikeston boxing enthusiasts will have their own champion fighter. . . but will have to share him with Houston.

ONE OF THE BIGGEST blows of the 1964 Series was supplied by Tim McCarver, whose tenth-inning homer in the fifth game gave the Cardinals a 5-2 victory and a 3-2 lead in games. Dick Groat, Bill White and Mike Shannon formed the welcoming committee.

Moss Holding Onto District Scoring Lead

Speedster Leroy Moss of the Poplar Bluff Mules vaulted into the district scoring lead with a pair of six pointers in the Mules 40-7 victory over Jackson last week, pushing his four-game season total to eight touchdowns for 48 points. He leads the northern conference.

Malden's Carl Barker pushed his total to 42 with a pair of scores at Caruthersville and holds down second in the district race. He paces the south.

Moss, who only two weeks ago was tied with Charleston's Everett Holley with 30 points, moved ahead as the Bluejay's offense has stalled and they have been shout out in two outings.

Third place in the district scoring race is held by a southern conference star from Portageville. He is Dennis Fisher, who has run for 24 points and booted the ball for 13 points totaling 37 points, one more than the Mules' John Brown, who tallied twice last week and has run his mark to 36.

Poplar Bluff's Ben Wyatt and Sikeston's Webb Edwards are staging a headon battle for the district extra point title with Wyatt holding a one-point edge on Edwards, 13-12. Fisher tops the south with 10.

Cardinal Scouting Report

By DICK KAEGEL
from The Sporting News

ST. LOUIS -- Exactly what does a major league scout write in his pre-World Series analysis? Here are a couple of examples from one scout's report:

On Orlando Cepeda's offensive capabilities: "A very good curve-ball hitter. Try good fast balls down and away and also jam up and in with hard stuff. If you curve him, make it a good one low and away. Try occasional change-up. Can also go to right field. Shade outfield to left. Will steal a base. Gets a good jump keep him close."

On Time McCarver's defensive prowess: "Good receiver who takes command and is in charge. Good hustler, excellent on pop-ups. Calls a good game. However, he does not possess a real strong arm, although he gets rid of the ball in a hurry, not afraid to throw, but not always accurate in throws to second. Will call pitch-out quite often."

The situation is sticky. It's the seventh game of the World Series, last of the ninth, the Cardinals have the winning run at second and a man on first. Orlando Cepeda is the batter.

You're the pitcher. What do you throw to Cha-Cha, the St. Louis sensation? Well, if you listened closely to your scout's pre-Series summation, you probably won't try a curve. Hooks are right up the Baby Bull's alley. A fast ball then. But where? You have two choices -- try to jam him with a hard one high and inside, or tempt him with a good hummer low and away. Any alternatives? Well, Cepeda is sometimes a sucker for a deceptive change-up and, if you're real brave and have a lot of confidence in your curve, you might try No. 2, but keep it ouside and down.

After considering all the possibilities, you decide on a fast ball and it's a dandy -- real smoke that nicks the outside corner at the knees. The big first sacker bites, leans over and flicks his wrists. The smack of a ball hitting a wall is lost in the roar of the crowd. That's baseball for you, baby.

American League scouts who have been following the flight of the Redbirds for the past several weeks are hoping their labors won' result in such an unhappy ending. As Bird-watchers, they'd like to duplicate the success enjoyed by Baltimore's scouts last year. The Orioles' rundown on the Dodgers (who bowed in four straight sorry performances, you'll remember) was praised as the best scouting report since Sioux braves briefed Crazy Horse and Gall on Gen. Custer's team in 1876.

The cloak-and-dagger boys have been quite impressed by Red Schoendienst's runaways.

'They're Tough, Solid, With Good Pitching'

"They can explode at any time," said one, "even that Maxvill. He's a pesky little hitter who can hurt you." "They play together as a team very well. A team with great spirit," said another. "Shades of the Gashouse Gang!" penned one in his sum-up. And another: "They're tough, real tough. Solid up and down the lineup and fine young pitching to boot."

What have the A. L. scouts learned about the Cards? In contrast to the pitching-rich, hitting-poor Dodgers of 1966, the Redbirds have excellent balance -- good pitching, punch and power at bat, great over-all speed, fine defense. The most obvious weaknesses appear in the latter. The A. L. champions certainly will try to take advantage of center fielder Curt Flood's injury-weakened throwing arm and ex-outfielder Mike Shannon's inexperience at third base.

Flood, headed for a post-season operation, hasn't been able to throw out Auntie Mame since aggravating his sore wing by banging into the Busch Stadium wall in July. Still, he can go get 'em better than any center fielder in the league. As for Shannon, he's got great reflexes and has made tremendous advances since his spring training switch, but the Moon Man still looks uncertain on bunts and slow rollers.

Elsewhere, the St. Louis defense is pretty sound. The double-play team of shortstop Dal Maxvill, second baseman Julian Javier and Cepeda is a pitcher's dream. Tim McCarver is a class catcher and, although his arm isn't the strongest, he gets his throws away quickly.

In left, Lou Brock has good lateral speed and an average arm, but sometimes has trouble with grounders. In right, Roger Maris doesn't have the great speed, but can field and throw with the very best. The defense suffers when Alex Johnson replaces Maris. Unpredictable Alex has dropped some easy flies and sometimes throws behind the runners.

At bats, the scouts have pegged lefty leadoff man Brock as a real swinger who will chase a bad pitch, but who seldom walks. He can pull with power but often hits to left, so look for the left and center fielders to shade him to left and the right fielder to move toward the line. Lou has trouble with low curves and hard stuff pitchers must keep an eye on one of the game's top theft threats.

Righthanded Flood is a good hit-and-run man -- even an inside pitch -- and usually bats second. He likes to pick on pitches upstairs, so low stuff at varied speeds is recommended. Like Brock, Flood can put down a good bunt and steal.

Maris, now an ex-homer hunter, doesn't try to pull everything any more, but he's still primarily a right field hitter. Hard, breaking stuff low and inside and fast balls low and outside are most likely to give Rajah trouble.

McCarver, who follows cleanup clotter Cepeda, has posed real problems for the scouts. Lefty Timmy's a real tough out who hits to all fields, doesn't chase bad pitches, can bunt and runs very well for a catcher. Best bets: Fast or breaking pitches low and outside or in tight and an occasional change-up.

Shannon is a righthanded batter with a lot of muscle who tends to be streakish. And he can look horrible on one pitch and slam the next out of the park. The scouts figure he can be jammed with fast balls and bilked into chasing curves low and away -- especially with a two - strike count.

Javier has stayed healthy for a change and is having a great year at the plate. He hits southpaws very well and saw a lot of them, particularly in the first half of the season. Hoolie has trouble with breaking pitches, notably those throws by righties.

For No. 8 hitter, Maxvill is very tough with runners on. He's a spray hitter with little power, so look for the outfielders to pull in. Maxie likes fast balls so he'll see lots of breaking stuff.

Among the extra men, Johnson and Bobby Tolan are likely to see the most Series action. Alex has been having trouble with most everything, possibly because he's holding his bat too high. The left - handed - hitting Tolan is tabbed as susceptible to high and inside hard stuff.

When the scouts look at the Redbirds' pitching, they start with Bob Gibson and shake their heads. Being sidelined with a broken leg apparently hasn't affected Gibby's live fast ball, sharp curve, hard slider and excellent control. He regained his rhythm quickly.

Dick Hughes, the 29-year-old rookie, has a no-windup delivery, an above-average fast ball, a good change-up and fine control.

Three other starters -- Nelson Briles, Ray Washburn and Steve Carlton, the only southpaw in the front five -- fall into the category of "good over-all stuff."

Malden In Key Game At Portageville., Cape Host To Jackson In North Tilt

Another week of high school football action begins early as Cape Girardeau Central High's Tigers will play host to Jackson Thursday in their first northern conference game. They raced to a 4-0 mark with wins over such powers as Carbondale, Ill., Mayfield, Ky., and only last week St. Louis county power Kirkwood. Jackson boasts a 1-1 won-loss record in the conference and are 2-2 overall.

Other area squads see action Friday night and with the top attraction at Portageville, where Malden visits in a vital southern conference game at Poplar Bluff, where Blytheville calls. Three undefeated powers broke the 100 point offensive barrier last week. Poplar Bluff vaulted over Jackson 40-7 and pushed to 140 points offense. Sikeston added 33 points against Kennett to go to 108. Portageville racked up 36 points against East Prairie last week and tied Bluff with 140 offensive points.

Four undefeated teams remain in the district. Three are in the north. Poplar Bluff, Sikeston and Cape hold 4-0 marks. Dexter's southern division entry has posted 4-0.

The Bearcats, unbeaten and untied with a 3-0 mark in conference play, meets East Prairie Friday night and Hayti is at Chaffee in the only other conference matches slated in the district.

Portageville, a 14-12 upset victim of Dexter two weeks ago, will battle for its league life. A loss would all but eliminate the Bulldogs from the race, after suffering their conference setback against the Cats. The Green Wave is 1-0 in conference play and was the pre-South favorite to sweep the title.

A Cat victory would maintain them in the driver's seat in the south. Games remain with Chaffee and Malden.

In non - league action, Caruthersville will be host to the Charleston Bluejays. Piggott, Ark., will be at Gideon.

Kennett and Sikeston are idle this week.

Schoendienst Series Views

BOSTON AP -- Manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals looks for the 1967 World Series to go six or seven games and says that he doesn't know who will win but "it will be a good Series."

The St. Louis party arrived in Boston late Monday for the opening battle for the world championship Wednesday at Fenway Park.

When told that many oddsmakers were establishing the Cardinals as the favorite, Schoendienst said, "That's nice, but odds don't make any difference."

He added, "If we should lose the first game, we'd be the underdog."

Schoendienst, who played second base for the Cardinals when they opposed Boston in the 1946 Series, said his team is in good physical condition for the fall classic.

He nominated hard - throwing Bob Gibson, a right-hander who won 20 or more games in 1965 and 1966, as the Redbirds pitcher in today's opener. Gibson, who broke his right leg in July, has pitched impressively since rejoining the club in September.

To make room for Gibson on the Cardinals' 25-man series roster, the Redbirds took John Romano, No. 3 catcher, off the active list. Romano, obtained from the Chicago White Sox before the 1967 season started, batted .121 in 58 appearances for St. Louis.

The Cardinals never let the pressure of first place bother them in rolling to the earliest National League title since 1955.

With first baseman Orlando Cepeda taking over as a field leader and clubhouse cheerleader, the Cardinals moved into the National League lead in late July and won the championship going away.

If the team had one trademark, it was the spirit generated by Cepeda, who led the club in hitting until a September slump saw his average drop to .325.

Schoendienst, whose team won a pennant in his third season as manager, announced last week that Gibson would be his starting pitcher. When he learned that Boston would be the Series opponent, he added that Dick Hughes and Nelson Briles would pitch games two and three. "After that," he added, "I just don't know."

In Gibson, the Cardinals thrown a veteran pitcher with Series competition at Boston; in Hughes, the Redbirds will use a 29-year-old rookie who rolled to a 16-6 record this season, and in Briles, St. Louis will throw a relief pitcher who became a starter at mid-season and won nine straight games. All are right-handers.

If the regular season is any criterion, the Cardinals might do better in Boston than in friendly Busch Stadium on the St. Louis riverfront. St. Louis had a 52-28 record on the road while winning 49 and losing 32 at home.

And perhaps in predicting the Series might go seven games, Schoendienst had in the back of his mind the fact that St. Louis never has lost a seven-game Series in 10 appearances. The Cardinals have won seven world titles.

Local Boxer Making Good

Greg Harrington

Greg Harrington, a winner of 37 professional fights and numerous Golden Gloves titles in his boxing career is beginning to dawn on the professional boxing world.

Harrington, who is a Houston resident, formerly of Sikeston, turned to the professional ranks at 14 while fighting in the 115-pound bantam division.

The former Sikeston resident started boxing in the city boxing club and has advanced to the state and national finals in seven years.

Mike Blacker is given most of the credit for Harrington's advance. Blacker has worked with him since his entry in the local club and trained him to the finals of the nationals. Among his last fights as an amateur was a technical knockout win in the final bout for first place.

Another man given credit for Harrington's success is Tom Crites, his manager who has seen the 17-year-old fight some of the top challengers and saw him suffer his only defeat in Madison Square Garden in New York six months ago.

Harrington's trainer, Dan Williamson, who has been at ringside with many top fighters says flatly Harrington will gain the lightweight championship.

"I think that he will meet Dick Tiger before the 1968 boxing campaign is completed," he said.

Harrington predicts that Griffin can beat Clay and Liston.

Williamson calls Harrington "the greatest puncher since Lou Jenkins, former lightweight champion."

Harrington is expected to fight Joe Brown at Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis soon.

Harrington's mother teaches in the Sikeston school system.

So. . . Maybe in the near future Sikeston boxing enthusiasts will have their own champion fighter. . . but will have to share him with Houston.

ONE OF THE BIGGEST blows of the 1964 Series was supplied by Tim McCarver, whose tenth-inning homer in the fifth game gave the Cardinals a 5-2 victory and a 3-2 lead in games. Dick Groat, Bill White and Mike Shannon formed the welcoming committee.

Moss Holding Onto District Scoring Lead

Speedster Leroy Moss of the Poplar Bluff Mules vaulted into the district scoring lead with a pair of six pointers in the Mules 40-7 victory over Jackson last week, pushing his four-game season total to eight touchdowns for 48 points. He leads the northern conference.

Malden's Carl Barker pushed his total to 42 with a pair of scores at Caruthersville and holds down second in the district race. He paces the south.

Moss, who only two weeks ago was tied with Charleston's Everett Holley with 30 points, moved ahead as the Bluejay's offense has stalled and they have been shout out in two outings.

Third place in the district scoring race is held by a southern conference star from Portageville. He is Dennis Fisher, who has run for 24 points and booted the ball for 13 points totaling 37 points, one more than the Mules' John Brown, who tallied twice last week and has run his mark to 36.

Poplar Bluff's Ben Wyatt and Sikeston's Webb Edwards are staging a headon battle for the district extra point title with Wyatt holding a one-point edge on Edwards, 13-12. Fisher tops the south with 10.

Cardinal Scouting Report

By DICK KAEGEL
from The Sporting News

ST. LOUIS -- Exactly what does a major league scout write in his pre-World Series analysis? Here are a couple of examples from one scout's report:

On Orlando Cepeda's offensive capabilities: "A very good curve-ball hitter. Try good fast balls down and away and also jam up and in with hard stuff. If you curve him, make it a good one low and away. Try occasional change-up. Can also go to right field. Shade outfield to left. Will steal a base. Gets a good jump keep him close."

On Time McCarver's defensive prowess: "Good receiver who takes command and is in charge. Good hustler, excellent on pop-ups. Calls a good game. However, he does not possess a real strong arm, although he gets rid of the ball in a hurry, not afraid to throw, but not always accurate in throws to second. Will call pitch-out quite often."

The situation is sticky. It's the seventh game of the World Series, last of the ninth, the Cardinals have the winning run at second and a man on first. Orlando Cepeda is the batter.

You're the pitcher. What do you throw to Cha-Cha, the St. Louis sensation? Well, if you listened closely to your scout's pre-Series summation, you probably won't try a curve. Hooks are right up the Baby Bull's alley. A fast ball then. But where? You have two choices -- try to jam him with a hard one high and inside, or tempt him with a good hummer low and away. Any alternatives? Well, Cepeda is sometimes a sucker for a deceptive change-up and, if you're real brave and have a lot of confidence in your curve, you might try No. 2, but keep it ouside and down.

After considering all the possibilities, you decide on a fast ball and it's a dandy -- real smoke that nicks the outside corner at the knees. The big first sacker bites, leans over and flicks his wrists. The smack of a ball hitting a wall is lost in the roar of the crowd. That's baseball for you, baby.

American League scouts who have been following the flight of the Redbirds for the past several weeks are hoping their labors won' result in such an unhappy ending. As Bird-watchers, they'd like to duplicate the success enjoyed by Baltimore's scouts last year. The Orioles' rundown on the Dodgers (who bowed in four straight sorry performances, you'll remember) was praised as the best scouting report since Sioux braves briefed Crazy Horse and Gall on Gen. Custer's team in 1876.

The cloak-and-dagger boys have been quite impressed by Red Schoendienst's runaways.

'They're Tough, Solid, With Good Pitching'

"They can explode at any time," said one, "even that Maxvill. He's a pesky little hitter who can hurt you." "They play together as a team very well. A team with great spirit," said another. "Shades of the Gashouse Gang!" penned one in his sum-up. And another: "They're tough, real tough. Solid up and down the lineup and fine young pitching to boot."

What have the A. L. scouts learned about the Cards? In contrast to the pitching-rich, hitting-poor Dodgers of 1966, the Redbirds have excellent balance -- good pitching, punch and power at bat, great over-all speed, fine defense. The most obvious weaknesses appear in the latter. The A. L. champions certainly will try to take advantage of center fielder Curt Flood's injury-weakened throwing arm and ex-outfielder Mike Shannon's inexperience at third base.

Flood, headed for a post-season operation, hasn't been able to throw out Auntie Mame since aggravating his sore wing by banging into the Busch Stadium wall in July. Still, he can go get 'em better than any center fielder in the league. As for Shannon, he's got great reflexes and has made tremendous advances since his spring training switch, but the Moon Man still looks uncertain on bunts and slow rollers.

Elsewhere, the St. Louis defense is pretty sound. The double-play team of shortstop Dal Maxvill, second baseman Julian Javier and Cepeda is a pitcher's dream. Tim McCarver is a class catcher and, although his arm isn't the strongest, he gets his throws away quickly.

In left, Lou Brock has good lateral speed and an average arm, but sometimes has trouble with grounders. In right, Roger Maris doesn't have the great speed, but can field and throw with the very best. The defense suffers when Alex Johnson replaces Maris. Unpredictable Alex has dropped some easy flies and sometimes throws behind the runners.

At bats, the scouts have pegged lefty leadoff man Brock as a real swinger who will chase a bad pitch, but who seldom walks. He can pull with power but often hits to left, so look for the left and center fielders to shade him to left and the right fielder to move toward the line. Lou has trouble with low curves and hard stuff pitchers must keep an eye on one of the game's top theft threats.

Righthanded Flood is a good hit-and-run man -- even an inside pitch -- and usually bats second. He likes to pick on pitches upstairs, so low stuff at varied speeds is recommended. Like Brock, Flood can put down a good bunt and steal.

Maris, now an ex-homer hunter, doesn't try to pull everything any more, but he's still primarily a right field hitter. Hard, breaking stuff low and inside and fast balls low and outside are most likely to give Rajah trouble.

McCarver, who follows cleanup clotter Cepeda, has posed real problems for the scouts. Lefty Timmy's a real tough out who hits to all fields, doesn't chase bad pitches, can bunt and runs very well for a catcher. Best bets: Fast or breaking pitches low and outside or in tight and an occasional change-up.

Shannon is a righthanded batter with a lot of muscle who tends to be streakish. And he can look horrible on one pitch and slam the next out of the park. The scouts figure he can be jammed with fast balls and bilked into chasing curves low and away -- especially with a two - strike count.

Javier has stayed healthy for a change and is having a great year at the plate. He hits southpaws very well and saw a lot of them, particularly in the first half of the season. Hoolie has trouble with breaking pitches, notably those throws by righties.

For No. 8 hitter, Maxvill is very tough with runners on. He's a spray hitter with little power, so look for the outfielders to pull in. Maxie likes fast balls so he'll see lots of breaking stuff.

Among the extra men, Johnson and Bobby Tolan are likely to see the most Series action. Alex has been having trouble with most everything, possibly because he's holding his bat too high. The left - handed - hitting Tolan is tabbed as susceptible to high and inside hard stuff.

When the scouts look at the Redbirds' pitching, they start with Bob Gibson and shake their heads. Being sidelined with a broken leg apparently hasn't affected Gibby's live fast ball, sharp curve, hard slider and excellent control. He regained his rhythm quickly.

Dick Hughes, the 29-year-old rookie, has a no-windup delivery, an above-average fast ball, a good change-up and fine control.

Book Not Favorable to Royal Family

LONDON (AP) — A book went on sale here that is not likely to become favorite reading matter in Buckingham Palace.

"The Secrets of Gotha," by Ghislain de Diesbach contains a chapter on the House of Windsor that does some frank commenting on Queeh Elizabeth II's royal ancestors.

On George I, founder of the present House of Windsor: "George consoled himself by having two official mistresses, two creatures who were ugly in different ways. One was enormously fat and the other was as slim as a rake.

"Since George I did not speak a word of English (he was German) and hardly troubled to learn any, these ladies had at least the merit of acting as interpreters."

Of George II: "Delicacy of feeling was by no means his strong point, and those who recorded life at his court stated that his greatest pleasure was to recount his amorous exploits to his wife, with all the revolting details."

Of George III: "Unfortunately he did not have their (his predecessors) relative degree of intelligence and the little that he possessed was to lapse into madness which made him deliver speeches to the trees in Windsor Park or run madly up and down the palace corridors."

And this: "During the last years of the 18th century the English royal family was like a nonstop musical comedy, with such complicated stories of secret marriages, romantic laisons, public adultery, intrigues and clandestine births that memoir writers lost track of them and the king lost his reason."

There was not much said, though, about Elizabeth II in the account of European royalty to present times.

The author is a frequent writer on royal families and a student of the Almanac de Gotha, which until it ceased publication several years ago was regarded as the bible of monarchy.

Jewish Holiday Season to Begin

NEW YORK (AP) — Sundown tonight ushers in Rosh Hashanah, the coming of the Jewish New Year.

The holiday lasts until sundown Thursday for Reform Jews and until sundown Friday for Conservative and Orthodox Jews.

In the Jewish calendar the new year is 5728.

The Rosh Hashanah holiday is the opening of a 10-day period known as the High Holy Days. The period ends with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement and the most sacred day in Judaism, which begins at sundown Oct. 13 and ends at sundown Oct. 14.

Mrs. Howard Gipson Bowls, Plays Bridge, Cooks, Sews

Editor's Note: This is the 57th in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

By RUTH DILLENDER

Mrs. Linda Gipson, 902 Crescent, plays bridge, bowls, cooks and sews.

She and her husband, Howard, have a son, James Howard "Jimmy," Gipson, 15 months old. Gipson is a superintendent for Ryan Construction Company.

Mrs. Gipson bowls on the Lewis Furniture Company team in the Royal Keglers league. She makes some of her clothes. She says that she enjoys cooking, a talent she learned in high school home economics class.

Gipson fishes, hunts and bowls on the Buchmueller - Whitworth team.

The family attends Murray Lane Baptist church. Mrs. Gipson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Reed, 234 Ruth St., and Gipson is the son of Mrs. Bertha Gipson, 704 Linn St.

A treasure is an antique crystal cream and sugar set given to Mrs. Gipson by her grandmother as a wedding gift.

Recipes Mrs. Gipson suggests:

SWEDISH APPLE CAKE

2½ cups fine dry bread crums
1¼ cups packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 cans (1 pound each) applesauce
2 cans (1 pound 4 ounces each) sliced apples
Fresh apples may be used but should be sugared
Juice of 1½ lemons
½ cup butter or margarine
Custard sauce

Mix first three ingredients and then mix next three ingredients. In well - buttered 13 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan, alternate layers of crumbs and apple mixture with a good layer of crumbs on bottom and top. Dot each layer of crumbs with butter. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, about 45 minutes. Serve warm or cold with custard sauce. Serves 12.

GREEN BEANS WITH CHEESE

1 10-ounce package frozen French-style green beans
1 3-ounce package cream cheese softened
1 tablespoon light cream
¾ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon salt

Cook beans and drain. Combine remaining ingredients and spoon over hot beans. If desired, drain one four-ounce can sliced mushrooms; brown in butter and use for trim. Serves four.

Mrs. Gipson says she quadruples this recipe and uses it for potluck suppers.

QUICK BEEF STROGANOFF

1 pound ground beef
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
¼ cup canned tomato sauce
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 tablespoons grated onion
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup dairy sour cream.

Saute beef lightly in butter or margarine in medium - size frying pan, breaking meat up with a fork as it cooks.

Stir in tomato sauce, parsley, onion, mustard, sugar and salt; heat, stirring constantly until sauce is bubbly-hot.

Stir in sour cream just before ready to serve. Heat just to boiling. Remove from heat as gravy may curdle.

Serve over seasoned hot noodles, rice or mashed potatoes.

HOMEMADE NOODLES

Combine one beaten egg, ½ teaspoon salt and two tablespoons milk. Add one cup sifted all-purpose flour or enough to make stiff dough. Roll very thin on floured surface; let stand 20 minutes. Roll up loosely. Slice ¼ inch wide, unroll and spread out and let dry two hours.

Drop into boiling soup or boiling, salted water and cook uncovered about 10 minutes. Makes three cups cooked noodles.

BUTTER BALLS

Cream 1 cup (two sticks) butter and ½ cup powdered sugar until fluffy. Blend in ½ teaspoon vanilla and 1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Stir in ½ cup chopped nuts. Chill several hours for ease in handling. Shape into balls 1-inch in diameter. Place on baking sheet. Bake 20 minutes in 350 degree oven. Roll balls while warm in powdered sugar. Cool. Yield: three dozen.

Eight U.S. Cities Near Top in Living Condition

Red Wagon Idea Big Hit In Vietnam

CAMP CARROLL, Vietnam AP -- One thousand little red wagons are heading from the United States to South Vietnam to play a role in the other war.

"This kind of thing may be more important than shooting people," said M. Sgt. William D. Abbott, who came up with the wagon idea.

Abbott, a soft-spoken 39-year-old Marine, got to thinking about it after he saw a Vietnamese boy dragging a discarded ammunition box through the mud of a refugee village near this artillery post just south of the demilitarized zone.

Being pulled along inside the box was another Vietnamese child.

"I just thought it might be pretty nice if they had a real wagon," Abott said.

He wrote his wife Madreen, in Stafford, Va., where she lives with their two children, and asked her to send him a couple of little red wagons. She did. One of them went to a Vietnamese child "and it must have 10,000 miles on it by now," Abbott said. He gave the second one to a Roman Catholic priest who helps handle the refugee families at nearby Cam Lo.

Then the word got around back in the states about the wagons, especially in the circles of the Amateur Trapshooting Association of America, in which Abbott and his wife have long been active. It snowballed and the trapshooters began "Operation Red Wagon." Money was raised at shooting events, starting last June 25 with the Fall Creek Valley Club at Anderson, Ind.

"I thought we might get enough money to buy 40 or 50 wagons, maybe a hundred at the most," Abbott said, "but the first thing I knew there was enough for a thousand."

The wagons cost $4 apiece in the United States. The shipping to South Vietnam is handled by the association and the Marines.

The wagon that Abbott gave the priest is used as a display model to let the refugee children know that more are on the way.

Book Not Favorable to Royal Family

LONDON (AP) — A book went on sale here that is not likely to become favorite reading matter in Buckingham Palace.

"The Secrets of Gotha," by Ghislain de Diesbach contains a chapter on the House of Windsor that does some frank commenting on Queen Elizabeth II's royal ancestors.

On George I, founder of the present House of Windsor: "George consoled himself by having two official mistresses, two creatures who were ugly in different ways. One was enormously fat and the other was as slim as a rake.

"Since George I did not speak a word of English (he was German) and hardly troubled to learn any, these ladies had at least the merit of acting as interpreters."

Of George II: "Delicacy of feeling was by no means his strong point, and those who recorded life at his court stated that his greatest pleasure was to recount his amorous exploits to his wife, with all the revolting details."

Of George III: "Unfortunately he did not have their (his predecessors) relative degree of intelligence and the little that he possessed was to lapse into madness which made him deliver speeches to the trees in Windsor Park or run madly up and down the palace corridors."

And this: "During the last years of the 18th century the English royal family was like a nonstop musical comedy, with such complicated stories of secret marriages, romantic liaisons, public adultery, intrigues and clandestine births that memoir writers lost track of them and the king lost his reason."

There was not much said, though, about Elizabeth II in the account of European royalty to present times.

The author is a frequent writer on royal families and a student of the Almanac de Gotha, which until it ceased publication several years ago was regarded as the bible of monarchy.

Jewish Holiday Season to Begin

NEW YORK (AP) — Sundown tonight ushers in Rosh Hashanah, the coming of the Jewish New Year.

The holiday lasts until sundown Thursday for Reform Jews and until sundown Friday for Conservative and Orthodox Jews.

In the Jewish calendar the new year is 5728.

The Rosh Hashanah holiday is the opening of a 10-day period known as the High Holy Days. The period ends with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement and the most sacred day in Judaism, which begins at sundown Oct. 13 and ends at sundown Oct. 14.

Mrs. Howard Gipson Bowls, Plays Bridge, Cooks, Sews

Editor's Note: This is the 57th in a series of articles about the home life of Sikeston area families.

By RUTH DILLENDER

Mrs. Linda Gipson, 902 Crescent, plays bridge, bowls, cooks and sews.

She and her husband, Howard, have a son, James Howard "Jimmy," Gipson, 15 months old. Gipson is a superintendent for Ryan Construction Company.

Mrs. Gipson bowls on the Lewis Furniture Company team in the Royal Keglers league. She makes some of her clothes. She says that she enjoys cooking, a talent she learned in high school home economics class.

Gipson fishes, hunts and bowls on the Buchmueller - Whitworth team.

The family attends Murray Lane Baptist church. Mrs. Gipson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Reed, 234 Ruth St., and Gipson is the son of Mrs. Bertha Gipson, 704 Linn St.

A treasure is an antique crystal cream and sugar set given to Mrs. Gipson by her grandmother as a wedding gift.

Recipes Mrs. Gipson suggests:

SWEDISH APPLE CAKE

2½ cups fine dry bread crums
1¼ cups packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 cans (1 pound each) applesauce
2 cans (1 pound 4 ounces each) sliced apples
Fresh apples may be used but should be sugared
Juice of 1½ lemons
½ cup butter or margarine
Custard sauce

Mix first three ingredients and then mix next three ingredients. In well - buttered 13 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan, alternate layers of crumbs and apple mixture with a good layer of crumbs on bottom and top. Dot each layer of crumbs with butter. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, about 45 minutes. Serve warm or cold with custard sauce. Serves 12.

GREEN BEANS WITH CHEESE

1 10-ounce package frozen French-style green beans
1 3-ounce package cream cheese softened
1 tablespoon light cream
¾ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon salt

Cook beans and drain. Combine remaining ingredients and spoon over hot beans. If desired, drain one four-ounce can sliced mushrooms; brown in butter and use for trim. Serves four.

Mrs. Gipson says she quadruples this recipe and uses it for potluck suppers.

QUICK BEEF STROGANOFF

1 pound ground beef
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
¼ cup canned tomato sauce
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 tablespoons grated onion
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup dairy sour cream.

Saute beef lightly in butter or margarine in medium - size frying pan, breaking meat up with a fork as it cooks.

Stir in tomato sauce, parsley, onion, mustard, sugar and salt; heat, stirring constantly until sauce is bubbly-hot.

Stir in sour cream just before ready to serve. Heat just to boiling. Remove from heat as gravy may curdle.

Serve over seasoned hot noodles, rice or mashed potatoes.

HOMEMADE NOODLES

Combine one beaten egg, ½ teaspoon salt and two tablespoons milk. Add one cup sifted all-purpose flour or enough to make stiff dough. Roll very thin on floured surface; let stand 20 minutes. Roll up loosely. Slice ¼ inch wide, unroll and spread out and let dry two hours.

Drop into boiling soup or boiling, salted water and cook uncovered about 10 minutes. Makes three cups cooked noodles.

BUTTER BALLS

Cream 1 cup (two sticks) butter and ½ cup powdered sugar until fluffy. Blend in ½ teaspoon vanilla and 1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Stir in ½ cup chopped nuts. Chill several hours for ease in handling. Shape into balls 1-inch in diameter. Place on baking sheet. Bake 20 minutes in 350 degree oven. Roll balls while warm in powdered sugar. Cool. Yield: three dozen.

Red Wagon Idea Big Hit In Vietnam

CAMP CARROLL, Vietnam AP -- One thousand little red wagons are heading from the United States to South Vietnam to play a role in the other war.

"This kind of thing may be more important than shooting people," said M. Sgt. William D. Abbott, who came up with the wagon idea.

Abbott, a soft-spoken 39-year-old Marine, got to thinking about it after he saw a Vietnamese boy dragging a discarded ammunition box through the mud of a refugee village near this artillery post just south of the demilitarized zone.

Being pulled along inside the box was another Vietnamese child.

"I just thought it might be pretty nice if they had a real wagon," Abott said.

He wrote his wife Madreen, in Stafford, Va., where she lives with their two children, and asked her to send him a couple of little red wagons. She did. One of them went to a Vietnamese child "and it must have 10,000 miles on it by now," Abbott said. He gave the second one to a Roman Catholic priest who helps handle the refugee families at nearby Cam Lo.

Then the word got around back in the states about the wagons, especially in the circles of the Amateur Trapshooting Association of America, in which Abbott and his wife have long been active. It snowballed and the trapshooters began "Operation Red Wagon," Money was raised at shooting events, starting last June 25 with the Fall Creek Valley Club at Anderson, Ind.

"I thought we might get enough money to buy 40 or 50 wagons, maybe a hundred at the most," Abbott said, "but the first thing I knew there was enough for a thousand."

The wagons cost $4 apiece in the United States. The shipping to South Vietnam is handled by the association and the Marines.

County Court Delays Stoddard Health Center

BLOOMFIELD -- The Stoddard county court Monday voted 2 to 1 to delay a vote on the proposed county health center until Nov. 1968 -- more than a year from now.

The court, despite urging by numerous persons that they call a special election on the proposal, voted to delay it until the next general election which means that the health center facilities cannot become a reality here for at least another year.

Associate Judge Leffler Lee made a motion that the election be held as a special vote -- as soon as legally possible. But he was voted down by Presiding Judge Clyde Henson and Associate Judge Jack Ward.

Formal petitions, containing 3,103 names of Stoddard County voters for more than the required number -- were presented to the County Court Friday of last week, asking for an election to be held for the establishment of a county health unit.

Between 60 and 75 persons jammed the county court offices at Bloomfield to present the petitions, under the supervision of the Rev. Robert McCoy who has been chairman of the county effort for a county health facility.

Although no specific date was set forth in the petitions, the persons presenting the petitions, ask that the election be held at as a special election--"as soon as possible," preferably Nov. 7.

The Rev. McCoy introduced the group to the three members of the county court, and the representative from each of the seven school districts in the county then stepped forth and presented the petition from his or her area.

The petitions, and their numbers included: Advance, 439; Bell City, 325; Bernie, 306; Bloomfield 431; Dexter, 938; Puxico, 330; and Richland, 354. Total -- 3102.

The county court, if it finds the petitions in order, could call a special election in the near future, or if regular countywide election. The petitioners, and other leaders in the movement, respectfully ask that there be as little delay as possible. "These services and these facilities are needed now," it was emphasized. It was pointed out that as soon as the issue is passed by the necessary two-thirds majority, then at least some health services will be made available through the State Division of Health. These services, naturally, will increase as the program is funded, but some services could be stated immediately if the issue is passed, it was pointed out.

TV Viewers Still Like Short Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — The hour-long television program has now overtaken and passed the half-hour show in popularity with the men who decide what the public shall see on the three networks. But the viewers, if the popularity polls are reasonably accurate, still seem to turn to the shorter programs—particularly when they are comedies.

This season there are 31 half-hour shows and 21 of them are made for laughs. There are 43 programs of either one hour's or 90 minutes' duration and comedy crops up only in the assorted variety shows.

Time was when the half-hour show was the single most important TV staple. Those were the days of the family situation comedies—now almost extinct—like "December Bride," "Make Room for Daddy" and "I Love Lucy," all big hits. At that time the executive theory was that an assortment of short programs provided variety for the viewer and kept him glued to one channel.

Now the theory is that the long show holds the viewer. CBS, in fact, has only two offerings on Thursday nights—90-minute "Cimarron Strip" and a two-hour broadcast of a feature movie. And Thursday night is a time when ABC has six half-hour shows running from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30. Even with CBS tossing some powerful movies into the channel—most recent was "The Apartment" —and with NBC's "Daniel Boone" and "Ironside" for more tough competition, most of those shorter shows are doing very nicely.

"Bewitched," for instance, is now in its fourth season and is as strong as ever. It was, in fact, the No. 4 show in the most recent Nielsen list, followed by Mario Thomas, "That Girl" which also follows it on the network schedule.

Ideal Soybean Harvest Weather in Prospect

By Leonard F. Hand
Meteorologist
Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Light rain and near normal temperatures are indicated for the Missouri Bootheel in the 30-day weather outlook for October.

Most high pressure centers affecting the region will move inland from the Pacific, cross the northern Rockies and mid-Mississippi Valley. This will promote long periods of open weather with sunny days and good drying conditions. Centers of cold Canadian air will cross the continent north of the United States border.

Major low pressure centers will be rare over the middle of the nation. Most of the precipitation will occur with passage of cold fronts. Amounts during each period should be light and the total for the month will be below normal over the Bootheel.

This combination offers excellent harvest prospects for soybeans. Chances for a moderate killing freeze, 24 to 28 degrees, to cut off the growing season are only one in 10 for a date in the last week of October. Climatology gives a 50-50 chance by Oct. 30 across the northern end of the Bootheel and by Nov. 15-20 across the southern extremes. A light frost was reported at several points in the Bootheel Sept. 29. For the most part this formed on dead grass or stalks or on exposed wood or metal surfaces.

Sunny mornings will help dry moisture deposited in bean pods during nights by dew or high relative humidity. Farmers who do not intend to adjust combines for day-to-day or hour-to-hour changes in moisture may encounter a shattering problem as the month progresses if equipment is adjusted for early forenoon conditions. There is still sufficient moisture in the ground to promote dew formation on cool, still nights, even though the air is relatively dry.

A rough guide for estimating relative humidity during the day is to watch the difference between the dewpoint and the air temperature. The dewpoint is forecast each day in the agricultural advisory.

Air temperature minus dewpoint and relative humidity: 5 degrees, 80-85 per cent; 10, 65-75; 15, 55-65; 20, 45-55; 25, 35-45; and 30, 25-40. Climatological probabilities of encountering temperatures too cool for optimum results from defoliants are high in October. Farmers would do well to watch daily and five-day outlooks to pick periods likely to give best responses this late in the season. Chances are good for sunny, dry weather following applications. Check with an extension director for advice on use of defoliants.

With cotton maturing so late, the cotton harvest bulletin, which predicts the time each day when quality harvesting conditions will be optimum, will not be prepared.

Dry weather conditions expected this month will be favorable for land preparation and fall seeding. Rain last month came largely in thunderstorms and left considerable variability in soil moisture conditions across the Bootheel. Heaviest rains fell in Dunklin county, where sandier soils are easily drained.

Amounts of rainfall recorded in September at ESSA Weather Bureau Agricultural Stations were:

Kennett 4.83 inches, Portageville 3.96 inches, Charleston 2.91 inches, Caruthersville 2.08 inches, Malden 4.83 inches, Poplar Bluff, 3.32 inches, Sikeston 2.60 inches and Delta Center Experiment Field 2.63 inches.

Normal rainfall for October over the Bootheel is 3.12 inches.

Normals for individual cities: Cape Girardeau 3.07 inches, Dexter 3.25 inches, Morehouse 3.15 inches, Parma 2.78 inches, Sikeston 3 inches, Caruthersville 3.13 inches, Doniphan 3.48 inches, New Madrid, 3.07 inches and Poplar Bluff 3.26 inches.

Short term averages for other cities:

Advance 2.74 inches, Bloomfield, 2.91 inches, Clearwater Dam 2.65 inches, Kennett 2.96 inches, Portageville 2.80 inches, Quilin 2.67 inches, Bernie 2.36 inches, Charleston 2.96 inches, Deering 2.30 inches, Malden 2.54 inches, Puxico 2.77 inches, and Wappapello Dam 2.60 inches.

The following ranges of precipitation have been found in October with light precipitations - Poplar Bluff 0.10 - 3.09 inches, average 1.71 inches, Sikeston 0.00 - 3.23 inches, average 1.59 inches and Caruthersville 0.21 - 3.11 inches, average 1.34 inches.

Escape Artist on List

WASHINGTON -- Henry Young who once made a near - successful escape from Alcatraz with the notorious "Doc" Barker and is now charged with escaping from the Washington state penitentiary, has been added to the FBI's list of Ten Most Wanted Fugitives.

On June 8, 1967, Young escaped from the Washington State penitentiary, Walla Walla, while serving a life sentence for first degree murder.

A federal warrant was issued on July 6, 1967, at Walla Walla, charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for the crime of escape.

Young's lengthy criminal career began in 1932 when he was convicted of robbery and incarcerated briefly in the Missouri State Prison. He was released on parole in June, 1933, and four months later received a one-to-ten year sentence in Washington state for second degree burglary. Young was paroled after serving one year of his sentence and approximately one month later he committed a bank robbery in the State of Washington. Upon conviction he was sentenced to serve a twenty - year term at McNeil Island, Washington, federal penitentiary.

While confined at McNeil Island, Young made an unsuccessful attempt to escape and in June, 1935, he was transferred to Alcatraz, California to serve the remainder of his sentence. There he gained a reputation as one of the "Rock's" most dangerous inmates.

In 1939, Young, "Doc" Barker and three other prisoners attempted to escape from Alcatraz. They actually sawed through prison bars to get beyond the prison walls and were on the beach when apprehended. Barker was killed during the attempted escape.

The following year, Young stabbed and killed one of the inmates who had been involved in the escape attempt. Young was indicted for first degree murder, but was convicted of involuntary manslaughter and was sentenced to serve three years in addition to the twenty - year bank robbery sentence.

While at Alcatraz, Young confessed murdering a man many years before during a bakery holdup in Everett, Wash. He was convicted of first degree murder and received a life sentence. After finishing his sentence in Alcatraz, he was brought to the Washington state penitentiary in 1955 to serve his life sentence.

Young is a white American who was born on June 20, 1911, at Kansas City, Mo. He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 135 to 140 pounds, has brown hair, brown eyes, a medium complexion and a slender build. Tattooed on her left forearm are "Little Henry," a cupie doll, "W" and the letter "D, P." A Donkey, a winged ter head and a dagger are tattooed on his right arm and a dagger and his right leg. Young wears a denture and partial upper plate. After the chapter closed, the Young, who has spent over half of his life behind prison walls, has been employed in the past as a mechanic, farm laborer, cement finisher and structural steel worker. Reportedly known for his gracious behavior, Young makes a very good appearance and, if met on the street, he might be taken as an executive in a responsible position. He is said to be an avid sports spectator.

He reportedly has suicidal tendencies and should be considered armed and extremely dangerous. Should any person have information concerning Young, he is requested to immediately notify the nearest office of the FBI. The telephone number may be found on the first page of telephone directories.

FDR Portrait Contains Error

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over the mantle in President Johnson's office is a historic portrait of Franklin D. Roosevelt incorporating a historic error that gets by under the guise of artistic license.

President Roosevelt might be a bit unhappy about the portrayal of himself holding "a rolled copy of the Atlantic Charter" since he went to some pains during his lifetime to set the record straight.

There is no "Atlantic Charter" document as such.

According to FDR and custodians of his Hyde Park, N.Y., presidential library, neither Roosevelt nor Britain's Winston Churchill ever signed any charter.

The nearest thing to a document, says Hyde Park Library Director Elizabeth Drewry, was a press release issued Aug. 14, 1941 to newspapermen aboard the British battleship Prince of Wales where Roosevelt and Churchill conferred in the Atlantic off the coast of Newfoundland during World War II.

She said FDR signed both his name and Churchill's to the typewritten statement which set forth the famous eight-point U.S.-British declaration of idealistic principles as guidelines for the postwar world.

Miss Drewry says the presidential library has that press release as "our original." And she confirms there was no official document.

A controversy over this fact arose during Roosevelt's lifetime. In 1944, he confirmed no charter existed in written form and that there was no formal signed document entered into by him and Churchill.

Despite all this historical background, artist Elizabeth Shoumatoff completed an oil-in-Church St., Brighton, Sussex. portrait of Roosevelt in 1966 for the White House collection and the White House press release announcing the gift last January said:

"In this portrait, President Roosevelt is pictured in a three-quarter study, seated with the waters of the North Atlantic in the background. Wearing his favorite Navy cape, Roosevelt's powerful hands grasp a rolled copy of the Atlantic Charter, a joint declaration made by the president and Prime Minister Churchill on Aug. 14, 1941."

TWO CUB SCOUT RECRUITS learning about Scouting activities from two Cubs at School Night for Scouting in Lee Hunter School. The boys, from left, are Jay Lopp, Craig Wheeler, Joel Montgomery and Perry Waltrip. They are all now members of Cub Pack 240.

Join Scouts in School Night More than 300

More than 300 Cub and Boy Scouts were recruited during School Night for Scouting in 14 area towns.

In addition, 30 new den mothers, four new cub masters and three new Scout Masters were recruited.

A new Cub pack and a new Scout troop were organized in Anniston, Eddie Schrader, Scout executive, said.

Boys interested in scouting may join any time.

School night is the only formal recruiting program.

A total of 134 boys joined Cub and Boy Scout units in Sikeston. Not all the figures are tabulated for the recruiting programs in Charleston, Bertrand and Vanduser. Charleston recruited 15 Cub Scouts.

New recruits in other area towns: Kewanee, 13 Boy Scouts; Anniston, 13 Cubs and six Boy Scouts; Morehouse, the Cuba; Morley, five Cubs and three Boy Scouts; New Madrid, 15 scouts; Matthews, nine Cubs; Benton, four Cubs and four Boy Scouts; Fairview, 12 Cubs and eight Boy Scouts; Oran, nine Cubs, and Blodgett, five Boy Scouts.

Scout training for leaders would begin at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 12 at the First Christian Church of Sikeston.

Boy Scout leader training begins at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the community room of the Security National Bank.

County Court Delays Stoddard Health Center

BLOOMFIELD -- The Stoddard county court Monday voted 2 to 1 to delay a vote on the proposed county health center until Nov. 1968 -- more than a year from now.

The court, despite urging by numerous persons that they call a special election on the proposal, voted to delay it until the next general election which means that the health center facilities cannot become a reality here for at least another year.

Associate Judge Leffler Lee made a motion that the election be held as a special vote -- as soon as legally possible. But he was voted down by Presiding Judge Clyde Henson and Associate Judge Jack Ward.

Formal petitions, containing 3,103 names of Stoddard County voters far more than the required number -- were presented to the County Court Friday of last week, asking for an election to be held for the establishment of a county health unit.

Between 60 and 75 persons jammed the county court offices at Bloomfield to present the petitions, under the supervision of the Rev. Robert McCoy who has been chairman of the county effort for a county health facility.

Although no specific date was set forth in the petitions, the persons presenting the petitions, ask that the county court call it as a special election--"As soon as possible," preferably Nov. 7.

The Rev. McCoy introduced the group to the three members of the county court, and the representative from each of the seven school districts in the county then swore to the truth and presented the petition from his of her area.

The petitions, and their numbers included: Advance, 499; Bell City, 325; Bernie, 306; Bloomfield 1,031; Dexter, 938; Puxico, 230; and Richland, 353. Total -- 3103.

The county court, if it finds the petitions in order, could call a special election in the near future, or it regular countywide election. The petitioners, and other leaders in the movement, respectfully ask that there be as little delay as possible. "These services and these facilities are needed now," if it was emphasized. It was pointed out that as soon as the issue is passed by the necessary two-thirds majority, then at least some health services will be made available through the State Division of Health. These services, naturally, will increase as the program is funded, but some services could be started immediately if the issue is passed, it was pointed out.

TV Viewers Still Like Short Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — The hour-long television program has now overtaken and passed the half-hour show in popularity with the men who decide what the public shall see on the three networks. But the viewers, if the popularity polls are reasonably accurate, still seem to turn to the shorter programs—particularly when they are comedies.

This season there are 31 half-hour shows— and 21 of them are made for laughs. There are 43 programs of either one hour's or 90 minutes' duration and comedy crops up only in the assorted variety shows.

Time was when the half-hour show was the single most important TV staple. Those were the days of the family situation comedies—now almost extinct—like "December Bride," "Make Room for Daddy" and "I Love Lucy," all big hits. At that time the executive theory was that an assortment of short programs provided variety for the viewer and kept him glued to one channel.

Now the theory is that the long show holds the viewer. CBS, in fact, has only two offerings on Thursday nights—a 90-minute "Cimarron Strip" and a two-hour broadcast of a feature movie. And Thursday night is a time when ABC has six half-hour shows running from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30. Even with CBS tossing some powerful movies into the channel—most recent was "The Apartment"—and with NBC's "Daniel Boone" and "Ironside" for more tough competition, most of those shorter shows are doing very nicely.

"Bewitched," for instance, is now in its fourth season and is as strong as ever. It was, in fact, the No. 4 show in the most recent Nielsen list, followed by Mario Thomas, "That Girl" which also follows it on the network schedule.

Ideal Soybean Harvest Weather in Prospect

By Leonard F. Hand
Meteorologist
Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Light rain and near normal temperatures are indicated for the Missouri Bootheel in the 30-day weather outlook for October.

Most high pressure centers affecting the region will move inland from the Pacific, cross the northern Rockies and mid-Mississippi Valley. This will promote long periods of open weather with sunny days and good drying conditions. Centers of cold Canadian air will cross the continent north of the United States border.

Major low pressure centers will be rare over the middle of the nation. Most of the precipitation will occur with passage of cold fronts. Amounts during each period should be light and the total for the month will be below normal over the Bootheel.

This combination offers excellent harvest prospects for soybeans. Chances for a moderate killing freeze, 24 to 28 degrees, to cut off the growing season are only one in 10 for a date in the last week of October. Climatology gives a 50-50 chance by Oct. 30 across the northern end of the Bootheel and by Nov. 15-20 across the southern extremes. A light frost was reported at several points in the Bootheel Sept. 29. For the most part this formed on dead grass or stalks or on exposed wood or metal surfaces.

Sunny mornings will help dry moisture deposited in bean pods during nights by dew or high relative humidity. Farmers who do not intend to adjust combines for day-to-day or hour-to-hour changes in moisture may encounter a shattering problem as the month progresses if equipment is adjusted for early forenoon conditions. There is still sufficient moisture in the ground to promote dew formation on cool, still nights, even though the air is relatively dry.

A rough guide for estimating relative humidity during the day is to watch the difference between the dewpoint and the air temperature. The dewpoint is forecast each day in the agricultural advisory.

Air temperature minus dewpoint and relative humidity: 5 degrees, 80-85 per cent; 10, 65-75; 15, 55-65; 20, 45-55; 25, 35-45; and 30, 25-40.

Climatological probabilities of encountering temperatures too cool for optimum results from defoliants are high in October. Farmers would do well to watch daily and five-day outlooks to pick periods likely to give best responses this late in the season. Chances are good for sunny, dry weather following applications. Check with an extension director for advice on use of defoliants.

With cotton maturing so late, the cotton harvest bulletin, which predicts the time each day when quality harvesting conditions will be optimum, will not be prepared.

Dry weather conditions expected this month will be favorable for land preparation and fall seeding. Rain last month came largely in thunderstorms and left considerable variability in soil moisture conditions across the Bootheel. Heaviest rains fell in Dunklin county, where sandier soils are easily drained.

Amounts of rainfall recorded in September at ESEA Weather Bureau Agricultural Stations were:

Kennett 4.82 inches, Portageville 3.96 inches, Charleston 2.96 inches, Caruthersville 3.08 inches, Malden 4.83 inches, Poplar Bluff, 3.32 inches, Sikeston 2.60 inches and Delta Center Experiment Field 2.63 inches.

Normal rainfall for October over the Bootheel is 3.25 inches.

Normals for individual cities: Cape Girardeau 3.07 inches, Dexter 3.25 inches, Morehouse 3.15 inches, Parma 2.78 inches, Sikeston 3 inches, Caruthersville 3.13 inches, Doniphan 3.48 inches, New Madrid, 3.07 inches and Poplar Bluff 3.26 inches.

Short term averages for other cities:

Advance 2.74 inches, Bloomfield, 2.91 inches, Clearwater Dam 2.65 inches, Kennett 2.96 inches, Portageville 2.80 inches, Quin 2.67 inches, Bernie 2.26 inches, Charleston 2.96 inches, Deering 2.30 inches, Malden 2.54 inches, Puxico 2.77 inches, and Wappapello Dam 2.60 inches.

The following ranges of precipitation have been found in October with light precipitation: Poplar Bluff 0.10 - 3.09 inches, average 1.71 inches, Sikeston 0.00 - 3.13 inches, average 1.59 inches and Caruthersville 0.21 - 3.11 inches, average 1.94 inches

WASHINGTON -- Henry Young who once made a near - successful escape from Alcatraz with the notorious "Doc" Barker and is now charged with escaping from the Washington state penitentiary, has been added to the FBI's list of Ten Most Wanted Fugitives.

On June 8, 1967, Young escaped from the Washington State penitentiary, Walla Walla, while serving a life sentence for first degree murder.

A federal warrant was issued on July 6, 1967, at Walla Walla, charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for the crime of escape.

Young's lengthy criminal career began in 1932 when he was convicted of robbery and incarcerated briefly in the Missouri State Prison. He was released on parole in June, 1933, and four months later received a one-to-ten year sentence in Washington state for second degree burglary. Young was paroled after serving one year of his sentence and approximately one month later he committed a bank robbery in the State of Washington. Upon conviction he was sentenced to serve a twenty-year term at McNeil Island, Washington, federal penitentiary.

While confined at McNeil Island, Young made an unsuccessful attempt to escape and in June, 1935, he was transferred to Alcatraz, California, to serve the remainder of his sentence. There he gained a reputation as one of the "Rock's" most dangerous inmates.

In 1939, Young, "Doc" Barker and three other prisoners attempted to escape from Alcatraz. They actually sawed through prison bars to get beyond the prison walls and were on the beach when apprehended. Barker was killed during the attempted escape.

The following year, Young stabbed and killed one of the inmates who had been involved in the escape attempt. Young was indicted for first degree murder, but was convicted of involuntary manslaughter and was sentenced to serve three years in addition to the twenty - year bank robbery sentence.

While at Alcatraz, Young confessed murdering a man many years before during a bakery holdup in Everett, Wash. He was convicted of first degree murder and received a life sentence. After finishing his sentence in Alcatraz, he was brought to the Washington state penitentiary in 1955 to serve his life sentence.

Young is a white American who was born on June 20, 1911, at Kansas City, Mo. He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 135 to 140 pounds, has brown hair, brown eyes, a medium complexion and a slender build. Tattooed on his left forearm are "Little her Henry," a cuple doll, "W" and "D. F." A Donkey, a winged horse head and a dagger are tattooed on his right arm and a dagger is tattooed on the upper part of his right leg. Young wears a denture and partial upper plate.

Young, who has spent over half of his life behind prison walls, has been employed in the past as a mechanic, farm laborer, cement finisher and structural steel worker. Reportedly known for his grandiose schemes, Mrs. Nunneley's three sons and their wives were present for the occasion.

Chapter Secretary, Mrs. Max Michael read a letter to Mrs. Nunnelee from the Grand Chapter of Missouri.

Two other 50-year members, Mrs. L. A. Simpson and Mrs. H. H. Cornwell, were present.

Mrs. G. A. Bonifield asked the blessing, and refreshments of sandwiches, nuts, and punch were served. Mrs. Ollie Combs was chairman of the refreshment committee.

Inter-American Cultural Center Opens

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—Art exhibitions will be a major element in the cultural activities of the new Center for Inter-American Relations, which will open next Wednesday in a renovated mansion on Park Avenue at 68th Street.

The art gallery on the center's ground floor will open to the public on Sept. 19 with an exhibition titled "Precursors of Modernism in Western Hemisphere Art, 1860-1930."

The director of the new gallery is Stanton L. Catlin, formerly assistant director of the Yale University Art Gallery; he was in charge of its "Art of Latin America since Independence" program.

With this opening show, "We hope to point up the interaction between European and American influences, to make people aware of the parallel developments in the modern world," said Catlin.

For this and future exhibitions, he said, "our aim is to cover all of the hemisphere—Canada, the United States, Central and Latin America."

The gallery consists of three contiguous rooms with 240 linear feet of hanging space, and about four shows a year will be prepared.

The purpose of the first exhibit is to bring together "some of the masters of Latin American and Canadian art who were contemporaries and who worked in similar or related traditions," Catlin continued.

"For example, related to the American realist Homer there is the Uruguayan realist Blanes, and related to the American futurist Stella there is the Argentine cubist Pettoruti.

"As counterparts to the American Impressionist Hassam there are Morrice of Canada and Reveron of Venezuela."

The second exhibit, to run from November to January, will be on "Camille Pissarro in Venezuela." Pissarro, who became an important member of the French Impressionist School, was born in St. Croix, Virgin Islands, and spent his formative years in Venezuela.

Catlin also is making plans for a future show on the advance guard of Latin American artists, who are working in the borderline area between painting and sculpture.

STANTON L. CATLIN, director of the Art Gallery of the Center for Inter-American Relations.

The center is a private institution organized by a number of leaders in business, education and the arts, and its chairman is David Rockefeller, president of the Chase National Bank.

It is intended as a forum for the study of inter-American economic, social and political issues, and to stimulate communication between the two Americas in business, education and cultural affairs.

It will sponsor lectures, conferences, public events, studies, publications and exhibitions, bringing together Latin American and North American statesmen, business men, scientists, diplomats, scholars, artists and journalists.

Last July the Ford Foundation made a one-year grant of $500,000 to the center to help get the program under way.

The six-story red brick mansion housing the center has been an architectural landmark for years, as an example of work done by the famous firm of McKim, Mead and White. Once it was the home of banker Percy Rivington Pyne.

More recently it served as headquarters of the Soviet mission to the United Nations. The structure seemed doomed when plans were made to demolish it and erect a huge apartment building. But it was purchased by the Marquesa de Cuevas—a first cousin of Rockefeller—who donated it to the center.

In addition to art exhibitions, the cultural activities of the center will include translations of poems and plays, and concerts.

The center's board of directors, along with Rockefeller, consists of William E. Barlow, president of the Spanish news magazine Vision; Charles W. Cole, former president of Amherst; Rene d'Harnoncourt, director of the Museum of Modern Art; Leonard W. Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting Companies Inc.; Andrew Heiskell, chairman of Time Inc.; Edgar Kaiser, president of Kaiser Industries; Archibald MacLeish, poet and former Librarian of Congress; Thomas Mann, former ambassador to Mexico and former assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs; George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO; George S. Moore, president of First National City Bank; Forrest D. Murden Jr., partner in Allen and Murden Inc.; James A. Perkins, president of Cornell University; William D. Rogers, Washington attorney and president of the center; David S. Smith, associate dean of the School of International Affairs, Columbia University; Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of The New York Times; Edward Larocque Tinker, philanthropist; Rawleigh Warner Jr., president of Mobil Oil Corp., and John P. White, vice president of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey).

'DEFENSE BELT' TALK GROWS

The idea of forming a barrier cutting across infiltration routes from North to South Vietnam has gained support recently as the effectiveness and advisability of bombing the North comes under fire. A length of cleared swath to observe troop movements already exists 11 miles across the thin upper neck of the country, and plans call for an extension of it as indicated by the dotted line just below the Demilitarized Zone. To stop such movements entirely, however, it would have to extend into Laos to cut across the Ho Chi Minh trail.

ELEGANCE AT HOME becomes more important each season. Graceful as the evening is the weightless fall of pleated nylon tricot (left) is this at-home culotte. A tiny stand-up satin collar circles the throat in a smart neckline. The African look is worked on the diagonal (right) for this toga that falls straight from the shoulder in printed nylon tricot. Sparkling paillettes heighten the stripes of brown. These are Vanity Fair designs.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What was Charles Dickens' last work?

A—"The Mystery of Edwin Drood," which he left unfinished at his death.

Q—What opera was presented at the opening of the Metropolitan Opera House in Lincoln Center, New York City?

A—The world premiere of Samuel Barber's "Antony and Cleopatra." Leading roles were sung by Leontyne Price as Cleopatra and Justino Diaz as Antony.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of concrete curb and gutters on Benton Street from Warner Street to East Street, in accordance with plans and specifications, in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $1.65 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy fo this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 2nd day of October 1967. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

Inter-American Cultural Center Opens

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

STANTON L. CATLIN, director of the Art Gallery of the Center for Inter-American Relations.

NEW YORK (AP)—Art exhibitions will be a major element in the cultural activities of the new Center for Inter-American Relations, which will open next Wednesday in a renovated mansion on Park Avenue at 68th Street.

The art gallery on the center's ground floor will open to the public on Sept. 19 with an exhibition titled "Precursors of Modernism in Western Hemisphere Art, 1860-1930."

The director of the new gallery is Stanton L. Catlin, formerly assistant director of the Yale University Art Gallery; he was in charge of its "Art of Latin America since Independence" program.

With this opening show, "We hope to point up the interaction between European and American influences, to make people aware of the parallel developments in the modern world," said Catlin.

For this and future exhibitions, he said, "our aim is to cover all of the hemisphere—Canada, the United States, Central and Latin America."

The gallery consists of three contiguous rooms with 240 linear feet of hanging space, and about four shows a year will be prepared.

The purpose of the first exhibit is to bring together "some of the masters of Latin American and Canadian art who were contemporaries and who worked in similar or related traditions," Catlin continued.

"For example, related to the American realist Homer there is the Uruguayan realist Blanes, and related to the American futurist Stella there is the Argentine cubist Pettoruti.

"Ascounterparts to the American Impressionist Hassam there are Morrice of Canada and Reveron of Venezuela."

The second exhibit, to run from November to January, will be on "Camille Pissarro in Venezuela." Pissarro, who became an important member of the French Impressionist School, was born in St. Croix, Virgin Islands, and spent his formative years in Venezuela.

Catlin also is making plans for a future show on the advance guard of Latin American artists, who are working in the borderline area between painting and sculpture.

The center is a private institution organized by a number of leaders in business, education and the arts, and its chairman is David Rockefeller, president of the Chase National Bank.

It is intended as a forum for the study of inter-American economic, social and political issues, and to stimulate communication between the two Americas in business, education and cultural affairs.

It will sponsor lectures, conferences, public events, studies, publications and exhibitions, bringing together Latin American and North American statesmen, business men, scientists, diplomats, scholars, artists and journalists.

Last July the Ford Foundation made a one-year grant of $500,000 to the center to help get the program under way.

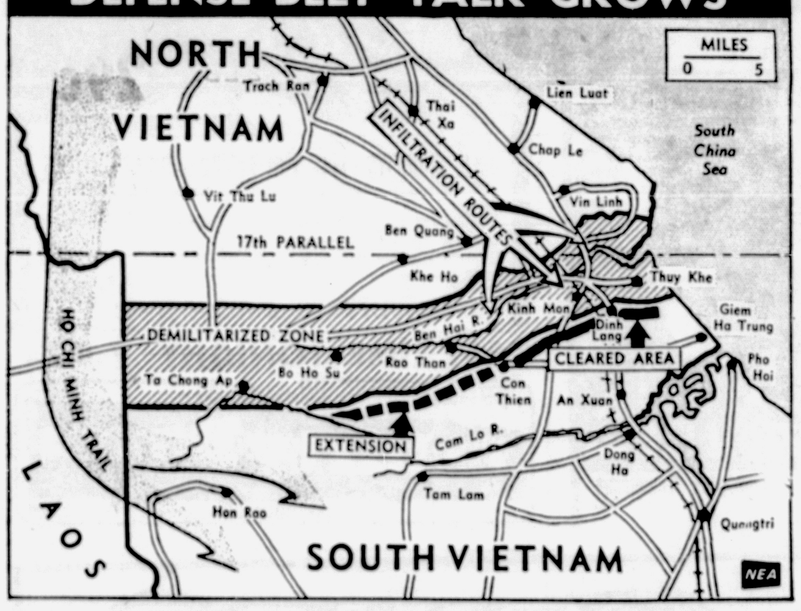
The six-story red brick mansion housing the center has been an architectural landmark for years, as an example of work done by the famous firm of McKim, Mead and White. Once it was the home of banker Percy Rivington Pyne.

More recently it served as headquarters of the Soviet mission to the United Nations. The structure seemed doomed when plans were made to demolish it and erect a huge apartment building. But it was purchased by the Marquesa de Cuevas—a first cousin of Rockefeller—who donated it to the center.

In addition to art exhibitions, the cultural activities of the center will include translations of poems and plays, and concerts.

The center's board of directors, along with Rockefeller, consists of William E. Barlow, president of the Spanish news magazine Vision; Charles W. Cole, former president of Amherst; Rene d'Harnoncourt, director of the Museum of Modern Art; Leonard W. Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting Companies Inc.; Andrew Heiskell, chairman of Time Inc.; Edgar Kaiser, president of Kaiser Industries; Archibald MacLeish, poet and former Librarian of Congress; Thomas Mann, former ambassador to Mexico and former assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs; George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO; George S. Moore, president of First National City Bank; Forrest D. Murden Jr., partner in Allen and Murden Inc.; James A. Perkins, president of Cornell University; William D. Rogers, Washington attorney and president of the center; David S. Smith, associate dean of the School of International Affairs, Columbia University; Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of The New York Times; Edward Larocque Tinker, philanthropist; Rawleigh Warner Jr., president of Mobil Oil Corp., and John P. White, vice president of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey).

'DEFENSE BELT' TALK GROWS



The idea of forming a barrier cutting across infiltration routes from North to South Vietnam has gained support recently as the effectiveness and advisability of bombing the North comes under fire. A length of cleared swath to observe troop movements already exists 11 miles across the thin upper neck of the country, and plans call for an extension of it as indicated by the dotted line just below the Demilitarized Zone. To stop such movements entirely, however, it would have to extend into Laos to cut across the Ho Chi Minh trail.

ELEGANCE AT HOME becomes more important each season. Graceful as the evening is the weightless fall of pleated nylon tricot (left) is this at-home culotte. A tiny stand-up satin collar circles the throat in a smart neckline. The African look is worked on the diagonal (right) for this toga that falls straight from the shoulder in printed nylon tricot. Sparkling paillettes heighten the stripes of brown. These are Vanity Fair designs.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What was Charles Dickens' last work?

A—"The Mystery of Edwin Drood," which he left unfinished at his death.

Q—What opera was presented at the opening of the Metropolitan Opera House in Lincoln Center, New York City?

A—The world premiere of Samuel Barber's "Antony and Cleopatra." Leading roles were sung by Leontyne Price as Cleopatra and Justino Diaz as Antony.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of concrete curb and gutters on Benton Street from Warner Street to East Street, in accordance with plans and specifications, in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $1.65 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy fo this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 2nd day of October 1967. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

FBI Agents Raid Club, Arrest Three

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Capt. Elza Brantley of the Illinois state gambling equipment at the Colony Club in East Cape Girardeau, Ill. and arrested three men on a federal complaint of violating state gambling statutes.

Arrested were John Wilson, 47, and Russell Miles Hill, 51, operators of the Colony Club, and Frank Mize of Cape Girardeau, a dealer.

Hill was charged with conspiring to use interstate means to aid racketeering and gambling. Agents said the warrant involves the movement of proceeds of gambling across state lines from Illinois into Missouri in furtherance of interstate gambling activities.

Wilson was charged with the distribution of proceeds by accepting gambling receipts in Illinois and bringing them to Missouri to be cashed. Similar charges were filed against Mize.

Veryl A. Riddle, U. S. attorney for eastern Missouri directed the filing of complaints against the three. It is expected the information will be placed before the federal grand jury in session in St. Louis.

Wilson was arrested in his apartment on the second floor of the Colony Club. Hill was picked up at his farm southeast of the night club.

Announcement of the apprehension was made jointly by Thomas J. Gearty, special agent in charge of the St. Louis office and Robert E. Gebhardt, special agent in charge of the Springfield office.

Hill and Mize were taken before U. S. Commissioner Paul A. Mueller J. at Jackson and preliminary bond was set at $1,000. Hill made bond immediately, and Mize was trying to obtain the money.

The men were brought before the commissioner on federal complaints.

The Colony Club, which had been closed for several years except for special parties, was reopened early this year. A plush night club, it attracts diners from a wide area, and recently changed its cuisine to Polynesian foods.

Ann Landers

She Doesn't Mind Taking Tough Line

Dear Ann Landers: I resented your smart-aleck reply to that pathetic man who weighs 400 pounds. He recounted a heart-breaking story of being turned away from hotels and motels because they were afraid he'd break the beds. The poor soul stood for hours at parties because no chair in the place could accommodate his weight. He stayed away from movies, concerts, the theater and sports events because the seats were too small.

The agonized fellow said he had been to several doctors and no one could find an organic reason for his obesity. Instead of giving him compassion you gave him a cruel reply which could only have plunged him deeper into despair.

I am bored with your stock answer, "See a psychiatrist," but this time you added a final barb--- "It might help if you learned why you insist on surrounding yourself with a fortress of flesh. From whom are you hiding?"

You are a hard-hearted woman who has no real feeling for the people who write to you. Of course you wouldn't dare let the public see this letter. It is a pity, because I would like the man to know even though you gave him an insult instead of help, I offer him 400 pounds of sympathy. -- ALL HEART

Dear Heart: The man who wrote doesn't need an additional 400 pounds of anything --including your sympathy. Sitting down and crying with people who have already been crying too long does not solve their problems.

I've been called a tough old turkey, but I don't mind because certain situations demand toughness. When they do, I feel it is my responsibility to lay it on the line.

Dear Ann: Do you think it is O.K. for a 17-year-old girl and her boyfriend to be alone downstairs with a date for 30 minutes or an hour? My husband is against it and I disagree. Please understand that we are always in the house, usually reading in bed. Our daughter never stays out after 12:30. Yes or No? --- C AND G

Dear C and G: Absolutely yes. There is no better place for a girl to bring her date --- provided a parent is in the house. Ask your husband if he would prefer that she went out and parked on a lonely road or went to a motel. Shocked? Well, some girls who can't bring their boyfriends home think of the darnedest things.

Dear Ann: I have a problem I can't run away from any longer. My dad and mother were divorced when I was seven years old. My mom dated Vic for as long back as I can remember. He wanted to marry her but, for reasons unknown to me, she refused. A few months ago Vic stopped coming to the house. The next thing I knew he has invited me to his he married another woman.

Ann, Vic was like a father to me and his marriage was a terrible blow. He has invited me to his home to meet his wife but I can't bring myself to go. I know if I see him I'll go to pieces. Please tell me how to get over this heartbreak and what I should say when he calls?--- A MILLION TEARS

Dear Friend: Write Vic a note and tell him you would prefer that he not call you any more. Explain that you need some time to get accustomed to thinking of him in a new family setting. Tell him you will call him when you feel up to it. When that days comes -- and it will - keep your word.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Saturn Practice Launch Resumes

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency today hoped to complete a lengthy countdown demonstration on the first giant Saturn 5 rocket.

When the results of the test are evaluated, officials plan to set a launch date for the rocket, the most powerful ever built. A delay in the countdown rehearsal plus a spacecraft fuel cell problem combined Tuesday to push the tentative launch date off at least four days until Oct. 28.

The 363-foot-tall Saturn 5 is being groomed for the first of a series of test flights intended to qualify the rocket to boost American astronauts to the moon.

The first launching will test all three stages and is to hurl an unmanned Apollo ship 10,000 miles into space, ramming it back through the earth's atmosphere at lunar return speed of nearly 25,000 miles an hour.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration originally scheduled the 83-hour countdown test to start Sept. 25, but it was put off two days. It got under way last Wednesday, aiming for a simulated blastoff on Sunday.

But several minor problems postponed the planned practice liftoff until today. The latest trouble involved a computer that misbehaved Tuesday.

From the Upper Room

The glory which thou gaves me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one. (John 17:22-23)

PRAYER: Lord God, our Father, we give Thee sincere thanks for Thy great love for us. We thank Thee for putting within our grasp the unity which exists between Thee and Thy Son. Permit that through this unity we may conquer in Thy strength. We ask in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

Poll Gives RFK Edge Over LBJ

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D.N.Y., is favored over President Johnson and other leading Democrats as the party's candidate for President in 1968, the latest Gallup Poll indicates.

When the field is narrowed to just Kennedy and Johnson, the New York senator still leads the President by 12 percentage points, not only with Democrats, but with Republicans and independents, Dr. George Gallup, Director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, reported.

Many political observers agree that President Johnson will be renominated at next year's party convention, Gallup said, but they believe that Kennedy would make an impressive showing in the primaries if his popularity remains as high as it is at present.

If You Were The Judge

Soldier Has Right to Have Able Counsel

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Private Fester was ever ready to write a wrong and was charged with forgery when he got caught. And, if getting caught wasn't bad enough, he nearly flipped when Captain Hoss was appointed to defend him at his court martial. Captain Hoss was none other than a veterinarian.

"Somebody's kidding," Fester protested at the court martial. "If I'm going to have to stand trial, I want a lawyer. Not an animal doctor. After all, I haven't got hoof and mouth disease. I've been charged with a serious crime."

"Sorry," was the answer, "but this is the army. All a soldier is entitled to at a court martial is an officer to defend him. And, you've got one. A good one. Captain Hoss really knows his oats."

All his naying, however, did Fester no good. He was forced to stand trial with Captain Hoss at his side and he was convicted. Tossed into the stockade he demanded his release in the Federal Court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order Fester's release for having been saddled with a veterinarian as a lawyer?

This is how the Judge ruled: Fester went free. The Judge held that the 6th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution gives a soldier, as well as a civilian, the right to counsel when charged with a serious crime. And, the Judge concluded, this presupposes that such counsel will be someone who has had some experience and training in the law. Merely being an officer is not sufficient to meet the constitutional requirement.

FBI Agents Raid Club, Arrest Three

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Capt. Elza Brantley of the Illinois state gambling equipment at the Colony Club in East Cape Girardeau, Ill. and arrested three men on a federal complaint of violating state gambling statutes.

Arrested were John Wilson, 47, and Russell Miles Hill, 51, operators of the Colony Club, and Frank Mize of Cape Girardeau, a dealer.

Hill was charged with conspiring to use interstate means to aid racketeering and gambling. Agents said the warrant involves the movement of proceeds of gambling across state lines from Illinois into Missouri in furtherance of interstate gambling activities.

Wilson was charged with the distribution of proceeds by accepting gambling receipts in Illinois and bringing them to Missouri to be cashed. Similar charges were filed against Mize.

Veryl A. Riddle, U. S. attorney for eastern Missouri directed the filing of complaints against the three. It is expected the information will be placed before the federal grand jury in session in St. Louis.

Wilson was arrested in his apartment on the second floor of the Colony Club. Hill was picked up at his farm southeast of the night club.

Announcement of the apprehension was made jointly by Thomas J. Gearty, special agent in charge of the St. Louis office and Robert E. Gebhardt, special agent in charge of the Springfield office.

Hill and Mize were taken before U. S. Commissioner Paul A. Mueller J. at Jackson and preliminary bond was set at $1,000. Hill made bond immediately, and Mize was trying to obtain the money.

The men were brought before the commissioner on federal complaints.

The Colony Club, which had been closed for several years except for special parties, was reopened early this year. A plush night club, it attracts diners from a wide area, and recently changed its cuisine to Polynesian foods.

Teacher Making Auto-Boat Relay Trip Down River

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — A Michigan school teacher is making two trips downriver and one trip upriver on his 5,100-mile way from St. Paul, Minn. to New Oreans on the Mississippi River.

The teacher, Parker Seiler, 41 of East Jordan, Mich., is covering the 1,700 mile distance between the two cities by alternately driving his car downriver, returning to his starting starting point and rowing his 12-foot boat Cherry Bell to the car. Then the process begins over again.

In effect, Seiler is making two downriver trips, plus retracing his steps an equal distance to keep the boat-car relay going.

Of course, he still faces the 1,700 - mile return trip to his starting point when he reaches New Orleans. The whole circuit involves about 6,800 miles of travel.

Seiler left St. Paul Aug. 8 and expects to reach New Orleans about Dec. 1. He reached Hannibal Tuesday.

Wilson's Viet Policy Rebuffed

SCARBOROUGH, England (AP) — The British Labor party rejected today Prime Minister Harold Wilson's policy of supporting the U.S. role in Vietnam and called for a total, swift and permanent halt to the bombing of North Vietnam.

Although Wilson is the party's leader, the decision is not binding on his government.

The party which dominates in Parliament is holding its annual convention here. Vietnam is but one of the issues under debate. The British economy is another.

The convention also voted a resolution urging Wilson to seek the expulsion of Greece's military government from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It also demanded a complete cutoff of all military aid and other contacts with the Greeks until a civilian government is restored.

The convention votes represented a rebuff of British Foreign Secretary George Brown.

The government opposed a resolution calling for an end to the Vietnam bombing.

In an aggressive account of his government's achievements, Wilson drew cheers from the Labor party convention with a promise to free British industry from "American domination."

Wilson's recital of his plans was received quietly but it appeared to rout his critics within the ranks of Labor, divided and uneasy over the nation's economic woes and the deferment of their socialist goals.

"Basically now there is an upturn in the economy," Wilson said.

He said national production and output per man are rising, the rate of unemployment increase leveling off and Britain's overseas trade balancing out.

Wilson spoke with feeling of Britain's nearly 600,000 unemployed, the highest number for 27 years, to 6,000 hushed delegates. He argued that "there was no alternative" to the harsh measures his government had taken in deflating the economy in mid-1966.

Two Reunited With Brother

DEERING — Owen Bray of Deering rural and Mrs. Lillie Gallaher of Bragg City rural had a reunion last weekend with a younger brother whom they had not seen for almost 50 years.

Newton Bray, 58, who was eight years of age at the time of the death of his mother, Mrs. Ella Elizabeth Bray, at Braggadocio in 1918, learned last Monday, Sept. 25, that he had a family.

When Mrs. Bray died in 1918, Newton was placed in a children's home in the St. Louis area. None of the family had seen him since and had no knowledge of whether he was living or dead.

On Sept. 25, Tommy Bray, son of Mr. and Mrs. William (Billy) Bray of West Alton, (Billy is a nephew of Mrs. Bray and Mrs. Gallaher) was talking with the junior at Orchard Farm High School at West Alton and learned that the janitor's name was Bray. He went home and told his grandmother, Mrs. Carter Bray, about the school custodian. Later that day Newton Bray went to the home of the William Bray family to determine whether or not they might be related. It was then that they learned of the family tie.

This past Saturday morning Billy Bray drove Newton Bray and one of his three children, a 15-year-old daughter, to Deering where the family reunion took place. He also visted in the home of his sister, Mrs. Gallaher, before returning to St. Louis on Sunday.

Dirksen Lectures War Course Critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — A slashing attack by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, on critics of President Johnson's war course threatens to splinter any Republican unity on the Vietnam issue for the 1968 elections.

The Senate GOP leader, who expects to have a guiding hand in drafting the party's platform next year, fired at Republicans and Democrats alike in a desk-pounding, fist-shaking indictment Tuesday of those willing to settle for something less than a Communist defeat in Vietnam.

In a bristling exchange with Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee over whether American security is at stake in the conflict, Dirksen trained his guns on recent dovish proposals by Sens. Thruston B. Morton, R.Ky., and his Illinois colleague, Sen. Charles H. Percy.

This contrasted sharply to his fulsome praise for Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, his leadership assistant, who said the United States must not abandon its Asian commitments. Kuchel told the Senate this country must not accept some "nameless settlement" just to end the war.

Dirksen lectured his colleagues for trying, he said, to run the war from the Senate floor. He counseled Johnson's critics not to demean the presidency.

"You do not demean him in the eyes of the people abroad because when you do, you demean the prestige of this republic," he roared. "I cannot denigrate or demean him in the eyes of the world in anything I say."

Without naming his colleague, Dirksen challenged Percy's Monday statement that more than half of the American people disapprove of the manner in which the President is conducting the war and that Johnson has not persuaded U.S. allies to bear their full share of the conflict.

Dirksen said more than 30 other countries are lending assistance in one form or another in Vietnam. He said domestic criticism of the war course might make American servicemen "begin to wonder whether they are forgotten men, forgotten at home."

"I am not going to forget them," he said.

The GOP leader criticized Morton, without naming him, for advocating an end to search-and-destroy missions and calling for U.S. concentration on defending the population centers and ports of South Vietnam.

Search-and-destroy, Dirksen said, "is the only real technique we have that is effective."

Dirksen also challenged those who advocate turning the Vietnam matter over to the United Nations. He held such a move would be vetoed by the Soviet Union in the Security Council.

Republican senators backing U.N. intervention have included Morton, Percy, John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, George D. Aiken of Vermont and Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon.

In defending Johnson, Dirksen made several references to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who also has backed Johnson on Vietnam.

Of Morton's assertion that Johnson had been brainwashed by a military-industrial complex, Dirksen said, "I would hate to have heard that said of President Eisenhower."

Terming the Republican party an umbrella with room for all shades of opinion, Dirksen said criticism should not go so far as to invade the constitutional powers of the President.

Morton has said he will support Dirksen for chairman of the 1968 GOP convention platform committee despite their differences over Vietnam. But whether other Republicans who have criticized the President will be happy to have a Johnson defender in that postion remains to be demonstrated.

Congress Sends Money Bill To Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress sent to President Johnson by voice vote today legislation financing more than a score of federal agencies until Oct. 23.

The agencies ran out of money last Sunday because their annual appropriation bills have not been enacted.

The House Tuesday voted temporary financing only until Oct. 10. The Senate by voice vote today changed it to Oct. 23 and the House accepted the amendment.

Republicans in the House served notice that they would renew on Oct. 23 their attempt to tie to the temporary financing bill a provision directing the President to cut federal spending at least $5 billion.

Hurricane Fern Fading Away

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)— Hurricane Fern, at one time feared to be another disaster like Beulah of two weeks ago, entered the Mexican coast north of Tampico today and virtually died, causing only minute damage.

The Weather Bureau at Veracruz said conditions in the gulf of Mexico were normal not long after daylight.

The 10,000 persons who fled Tampico ahead of Fern returned to their homes. Weather was clear.

Speed of winds dropped to 70 miles per hour— below official hurricane strength of 75 m.p.h. — before Fern reached shore between 1 and 2 a.m.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed by voice vote today a compromise $2.3 billion military construction authorization bill and sent it to President Johnson.

The House had passed the compromise measure Tuesday.

Sputnik 1 Launch Opened Space Age 10 Years Ago

MOSCOW (AP) — Ten years ago today a silver ball with four whisker-like antennas became the first manmade object to orbit the earth. It was Sputnik 1, and its launching by the Russians opened the Space Age.

Since then, the Soviet Union has continued to pioneer major space developments, from launching the first man in space to achieving the first soft landing of an unmanned craft on the moon.

Not far behind, the United States has matched and then surpassed most Soviet feats.

America also has to its credit man's first rendezvous and locking of spaceships in orbit.

Unlike the United States, Russia has apparently gambled on a few giant strides forward, rather than many small, cautious ones.

In 1961 cosmonaut Yuri V. Gagarin rode a Vostok (East) spaceship for one orbit of the earth to become the first man in space.

This feat was followed by five more Vostok flights, the last the 1963 venture of Valentina Nikolayeva-Tereshkova, the world's only woman cosmonaut.

After an unexplained pause of 16 months, the Soviets leaped ahead from one-man shots to the launching of a three-man Voskhod (Sunrise) spacecraft in October 1964.

Instead of repeating this feat, the Russians jumped ahead to another first: the March 1965 space walk in which Alexei A. Leovov left his two-man spaceship and stepped into space for 10 minutes.

The Soviets waited then more than two years before attempting another manned launching. The long pause suggested they were preparing for another spectacular accomplishment, possibly involving a new generation of spaceships that were bigger, more sophisticated and manned by larger crews.

Whatever was planned, something went wrong.

The Soviets reported only that a new craft, Soyuz 1, crashed after 24 hours of orbiting last April, killing cosmonaut Vladimir M. Komarov.

Russia's unmanned Luna 9 last year became the first space craft to land intact on the moon and send television pictures of the moon's surface back to earth.

Some observers, noting Russia's preference for space spectaculars that bring prestige, speculate that the Soviets may next try to orbit a manned spacecraft around the moon, without landing, and return it to earth.

From the propaganda point of view, the most obvious time would be just before the Nov. 7 celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

'We're Getting Better' President Johnson Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asserted today that despite reverses, setbacks and frustrations, people know "that we're getting better every day."

Departing from his prepared text at a meeting commemorating National Cooperative Month, Johnson seemed to have some of his own reverses, setbacks and frustrations in mind.

Noting that "we reserve the right to express ourselves quite freely," as in the family, the President added:

"But when it comes to finding someone better in the kitchen or trading a son or daughter for someone else, that's another matter."

More formally, Johnson applauded cooperatives as agencies that "represent much of what is best about America."

Olds Cites Improvement In Enemy Pilots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force Col. Robin Olds, the man who has shot down more Communist MIGs in the Vietnamese war than anyone else, says enemy pilots are vastly better than a year ago.

"What happened, I don't know," he said. "But whatever happened, they're a hell of a lot better than what was up there last fall."

Olds, who is to assume command of cadets at the Air Force Academy Nov. 1, flew 152 missions in Viet Nam and shot down four enemy planes. He commented after calling on President Johnson in the White House.

Bus-Truck Crash Injures Over 40 School Children

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— A loaded dump truck and a school bus carrying handicapped children collided and overturned on a Jacksonville street today, severing the legs of a woman on the bus and injuring several children.

More than 40 children were hospitalized but none was believed seriously hurt.

Police said Mrs. Olivia Brooks, a temporary attendant to the children, lost both legs when the bus overturned. She was in serious condition.

Investigating officers said the mishap occurred on a Jacksonville Expressway artery when the truck, apparently out of control, crashed through a barrier and smashed into the oncoming bus.

The truck driver was hospitalized with undetermined injuries.

The accident took place as children, ranging in age from 8 to 12, were being transferred to the J. Allen Axson School for mentally retarded children from the Biltmore School. Officials said the transfer was a daily procedure.

INSTANT FRUIT SALAD

- 1 1-lb. can fruit cocktail, drained
- 1 #2 can crushed pineapple, drained
- 1 11-oz. can Mandarin orange segments, drained
- 1 4-oz. jar maraschino cherries, drained and quartered (approx. ½ cup)
- 1 6-oz. package miniature marshmallows (or 4 cups quartered large ones)
- 1 package (3¾ ozs.) lemon-flavored instant pudding mix
- 2 cups MILNOT
- ½ cup MILNOT, whipped
- 4 tablespoons lemon juice

Toss together well-drained fruit and marshmallows, set aside. Combine MILNOT and pudding, beat with rotary beater until well blended—about one minute. Whip lemon juice gradually into the whipped MILNOT; fold into the pudding mixture. Combine the two mixtures lightly. Chill well. (Preferably overnight.) Serve on lettuce. Serves 10-12.

Teacher Making Auto-Boat Relay Trip Down River

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — A Michigan school teacher is making two trips downriver and one trip upriver on his 5,100-mile way from St. Paul, Minn. to New Oreans on the Mississippi River.

The teacher, Parker Seiler, 41 of East Jordan, Mich., is covering the 1,700 mile distance between the two cities by alternately driving his car downriver, returning to his starting starting point and rowing his 12-foot boat Cherry Bell to the car. Then the process begins over again.

In effect, Seiler is making two downriver trips, plus retracing his steps an equal distance to keep the boat-car relay going.

Of course, he still faces the 1,700 - mile return trip to his starting point when he reaches New Orleans. The whole circuit involves about 6,800 miles of travel.

Seiler left St. Paul Aug. 8 and expects to reach New Orleans about Dec. 1. He reached Hannibal Tuesday.

ANCHOR TOY has announced its intention to purchase this building at 1620 East Malone, which it has rented from the City of Sikeston since 1955, for $42,000. Those are the Missouri Pacific railroad tracks.

Wilson's Viet Policy Rebuffed

SCARBOROUGH, England (AP) — The British Labor party rejected today Prime Minister Harold Wilson's policy of supporting the U.S. role in Vietnam and called for a total, swift and permanent halt to the bombing of North Vietnam.

Although Wilson is the party's leader, the decision is not binding on his government.

The party which dominates in Parliament is holding its annual convention here. Vietnam is but one of the issues under debate. The British economy is another.

The convention also voted a resolution urging Wilson to seek the expulsion of Greece's military government from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It also demanded a complete cutoff of all military aid and other contacts with the Greeks until a civilian government is restored.

The convention votes represented a rebuff of British Foreign Secretary George Brown.

The government opposed a resolution calling for an end to the Vietnam bombing.

In an aggressive account of his government's achievements, Wilson drew cheers from the Labor party convention with a promise to free British industry from "American domination."

Wilson's recital of his plans was received quietly but it appeared to rout his critics within the ranks of Labor, divided and uneasy over the nation's economic woes and the deferment of their socialist goals.

"Basically now there is an upturn in the economy," Wilson said.

He said national production and output per man are rising, the rate of unemployment increase leveling off and Britain's overseas trade balancing out.

Wilson spoke with feeling of Britain's nearly 600,000 unemployed, the highest number for 27 years, to 6,000 hushed delegates. He argued that "there was no alternative" to the harsh measures his government had taken in deflating the economy in mid-1966.

Two Reunited With Brother

DEERING — Owen Bray of Deering rural and Mrs. Lillie Gallaher of Bragg City rural had a reunion last weekend with a younger brother whom they had not seen for almost 50 years.

Newton Bray, 58, who was eight years of age at the time of the death of his mother, Mrs. Ella Elizabeth Bray, at Braggadocio in 1918, learned last Monday, Sept. 25, that he had a family.

When Mrs. Bray died in 1918, Newton was placed in a children's home in the St. Louis area. None of the family had seen him since and had no knowledge of whether he was living or dead.

On Sept. 25, Tommy Bray, son of Mr. and Mrs. William (Billy) Bray of West Alton, (Billy is a nephew of Mrs. Bray and Mrs. Gallaher) was talking with the junior at Orchard Farm High School at West Alton and learned that the janitor's name was Bray. He went home and told his grandmother, Mrs. Carter Bray, about the school custodian. Later that day Newton Bray went to the home of the William Bray family to determine whether or not they might be related. It was then that they learned of the family tie.

This past Saturday morning Billy Bray drove Newton Bray and one of his three children, a 15-year-old daughter, to Deering where the family reunion took place. He also visted in the home of his sister, Mrs. Gallaher, before returning to St. Louis on Sunday.

Dirksen Lectures War Course Critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — A slashing attack by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, on critics of President Johnson's war course threatens to splinter any Republican unity on the Vietnam issue for the 1968 elections.

The Senate GOP leader, who expects to have a guiding hand in drafting the party's platform next year, fired at Republicans and Democrats alike in a desk-pounding, fist-shaking indictment Tuesday of those willing to settle for something less than a Communist defeat in Vietnam.

In a bristling exchange with Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee over whether American security is at stake in the conflict, Dirksen trained his guns on recent dovish proposals by Sens. Thruston B. Morton, R.Ky., and his Illinois colleague, Sen. Charles H. Percy.

This contrasted sharply to his fulsome praise for Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, his leadership assistant, who said the United States must not abandon its Asian commitments. Kuchel told the Senate this country must not accept some "nameless settlement" just to end the war.

Dirksen lectured his colleagues for trying, he said, to run the war from the Senate floor. He counseled Johnson's critics not to demean the presidency.

"You do not demean him in the eyes of the people abroad because when you do, you demean the prestige of this republic," he roared. "I cannot denigrate or demean him in the eyes of the world in anything I say."

Without naming his colleague, Dirksen challenged Percy's Monday statement that more than half of the American people disapprove of the manner in which the President is conducting the war and that Johnson has not persuaded U.S. allies to bear their full share of the conflict.

Dirksen said more than 30 other countries are lending assistance in one form or another in Vietnam. He said domestic criticism of the war course might make American servicemen "begin to wonder whether they are forgotten men, forgotten at home."

"I am not going to forget them," he said.

The GOP leader criticized Morton, without naming him, for advocating an end to search-and-destroy missions and calling for U.S. concentration on defending the population centers and ports of South Vietnam.

Search-and-destroy, Dirksen said, "is the only real technique we have that is effective."

Dirksen also challenged those who advocate turning the Vietnam matter over to the United Nations. He held such a move would be vetoed by the Soviet Union in the Security Council.

Republican senators backing U.N. intervention have included Morton, Percy, John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, George D. Aiken of Vermont and Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon.

In defending Johnson, Dirksen made several references to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who also has backed Johnson on Vietnam.

Of Morton's assertion that Johnson had been brainwashed by a military-industrial complex, Dirksen said, "I would hate to have heard that said of President Eisenhower."

Terming the Republican party an umbrella with room for all shades of opinion, Dirksen said criticism should not go so far as to invade the constitutional powers of the President.

Morton has said he will support Dirksen for chairman of the 1968 GOP convention platform committee despite their differences over Vietnam. But whether other Republicans who have criticized the President will be happy to have a Johnson defender in that postion remains to be demonstrated.

Congress Sends Money Bill To Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress sent to President Johnson by voice vote today legislation financing more than a score of federal agencies until Oct. 23.

The agencies ran out of money last Sunday because their annual appropriation bills have not been enacted.

The House Tuesday voted temporary financing only until Oct. 10. The Senate by voice vote today changed it to Oct. 23 and the House accepted the amendment.

Republicans in the House served notice that they would renew on Oct. 23 their attempt to tie to the temporary financing bill a provision directing the President to cut federal spending at least $5 billion.

Hurricane Fern Fading Away

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)— Hurricane Fern, at one time feared to be another disaster like Beulah of two weeks ago, entered the Mexican coast north of Tampico today and virtually died, causing only minute damage.

The Weather Bureau at Veracruz said conditions in the gulf of Mexico were normal not long after daylight.

The 10,000 persons who fled Tampico ahead of Fern returned to their homes. Weather was clear.

Speed of winds dropped to 70 miles per hour— below official hurricane strength of 75 m.p.h. — before Fern reached shore between 1 and 2 a.m.

There was 9th graf 121, counting insert 133.

Senate Passes Military Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed by voice vote today a compromise $2.3 billion military construction authorization bill and sent it to President Johnson.

The House had passed the compromise measure Tuesday.

Sputnik 1 Launch Opened Space Age 10 Years Ago

MOSCOW (AP) — Ten years ago today a silver ball with four whisker-like antennas became the first manmade object to orbit the earth. It was Sputnik 1, and its launching by the Russians opened the Space Age.

Since then, the Soviet Union has continued to pioneer major space developments, from launching the first man in space to achieving the first soft landing of an unmanned craft on the moon.

Not far behind, the United States has matched and then surpassed most Soviet feats.

America also has to its credit man's first rendezvous and locking of spaceships in orbit.

Unlike the United States, Russia has apparently gambled on a few giant strides forward, rather than many small, cautious ones.

In 1961 cosmonaut Yuri V. Gagarin rode a Vostok (East) spaceship for one orbit of the earth to become the first man in space.

This feat was followed by five more Vostok flights, the last the 1963 venture of Valentina Nikolayeva-Tereshkova, the world's only woman cosmonaut.

After an unexplained pause of 16 months, the Soviets leaped ahead from one-man shots to the launching of a three-man Voskhod (Sunrise) spacecraft in October 1964.

Instead of repeating this feat, the Russians jumped ahead to another first: the March 1965 space walk in which Alexei A. Leovov left his two-man spaceship and stepped into space for 10 minutes.

The Soviets waited then more than two years before attempting another manned launching.

The long pause suggested they were preparing for another spectacular accomplishment, possibly involving a new generation of spaceships that were bigger, more sophisticated and manned by larger crews.

Whatever was planned, something went wrong.

The Soviets reported only that a new craft, Soyuz 1, crashed after 24 hours of orbiting last April, killing cosmonaut Vladimir M. Komarov.

Russia's unmanned Luna 9 last year became the first space craft to land intact on the moon and send television pictures of the moon's surface back to earth.

Some observers, noting Russia's preference for space spectaculars that bring prestige, speculate that the Soviets may next try to orbit a manned spacecraft around the moon, without landing, and return it to earth.

From the propaganda point of view, the most obvious time would be just before the Nov. 7 celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

'We're Getting Better' President Johnson Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asserted today that despite reverses, setbacks and frustrations, people know "that we're getting better every day."

Departing from his prepared text at a meeting commemorating National Cooperative Month, Johnson seemed to have some of his own reverses, setbacks and frustrations in mind.

Noting that "we reserve the right to express ourselves quite freely," as in the family, the President added:

"But when it comes to finding someone better in the kitchen or trading a son or daughter for someone else, that's another matter."

More formally, Johnson applauded cooperatives as agencies that "represent much of what is best about America."

Olds Cites Improvement In Enemy Pilots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force Col. Robin Olds, the man who has shot down more Communist MIGs in the Vietnamese war than anyone else, says enemy pilots are vastly better than a year ago.

"What happened, I don't know," he said. "But whatever happened, they're a hell of a lot better than what was up there last fall."

Olds, who is to assume command of cadets at the Air Force Academy Nov. 1, flew 152 missions in Viet Nam and shot down four enemy planes. He commented after calling on President Johnson in the White House.

Bus-Truck Crash Injures Over 40 School Children

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— A loaded dump truck and a school bus carrying handicapped children collided and overturned on a Jacksonville street today, severing the legs of a woman on the bus and injuring several children.

More than 40 children were hospitalized but none was believed seriously hurt.

Police said Mrs. Olivia Brooks, a temporary attendant to the children, lost both legs when the bus overturned. She was in serious condition.

Investigating officers said the mishap occurred on a Jacksonville Expressway artery when the truck, apparently out of control, crashed through a barrier and smashed into the oncoming bus.

The truck driver was hospitalized with undetermined injuries.

The accident took place as children, ranging in age from 8 to 12, were being transferred to the J. Allen Axson School for mentally retarded children from the Biltmore School. Officials said the transfer was a daily procedure.

Coffee Corner
by Cherie

Well, I went over to mother's and conned her into shortening all of my skirts and I thought that at least I was prepared to hold my own with the leggy look -- not so daddy oh! I have just recently returned from the thriving city of Memphis, and there I learned (much to my sorrow), that I am still a dowdy and my skirts are way too long. With my luck, about the time they drop to your ankles, I'll have just finished having mine all hoisted thigh high. Anyway, I informed my mama that I needed my wardrobe lifted at least another inch or so, and you should have seen the horrified expression that crossed her face. You see my mother has this problem, she thinks (as a result of being a child bride), that I am her sister and her age, while Betty, my younger sister, and I might add she is much, much younger sister is really my daughter. Well, of course, I'm seven years nearer Betty's age than I am my mother's, but I am sure due to my fast and ever increasing maturity, and the fact that my mother looks just like my sister, (my younger one), makes the fact that I'm her daughter occasionally slip her mind. So, she thinks a woman of our ages definitely needs to wear longer skirts, and particularly when they have fat knees like I do. Now what do you do in a situation like this? Just because I have as many grey hairs as she, weigh 12 pounds more which gives me the plump matronly figure and keeps her in Twiggy's league, and have more wrinkles on my brow -- still, how do I convince her I'm a member of the younger (at least younger than some), generation and I need to get Mod? I tell you, she and Charles are a pair, they expect me at 30 to sit in a rocker and take up knitting, and I think I'm a little bit dotty when I try to get gay. But I'll tell you something, just like I told Charles, I may look like the old gray mare who ain't what she used to be, but I ain't gonna act like it. Charles says he can't stand looking at all the ladies girdles when they sit down in these short skirts, but I'm going to go and tack some lace on the bottom of my long-line, and then he can't complain as he just loves frilly undies. So watch out gang, cause here I come, fat knees, lacy long lines and all -- that is if I can ever get away from these fellows in the white coats mom and Charles hired to sit with me!

TRIP TO THE FAR EAST, MIDDLE EAST AND EUROPE

The foreign policy of the United States should recognize more the great changes that have occurred everywhere since the end of World War II.

On returning to Washington September 28, that is the basic thrust of the conclusions I gained from a fairly rapid trip to the Far East, the Middle East and Europe. Countries visited included Japan, Hong Kong, Thailand, South Vietnam, Laos, Israel, Greece, Italy, and Great Britain.

In due course I will present my findings and conclusions to the Senate.

A. L. STORY, FARM LEADER

In the recent tragic death of A. L. Story, Charleston, Mo., member of the Missouri State Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Committee, agriculture in Missouri and throughout the nation lost one of its most able and effective spokesmen. A former president of both the Missouri Cotton Producers and the American Cotton Producers Association, Abbie Story was an indefatigable worker for better farm income.

Early in 1961, President Kennedy offered him an appointment as an Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, but Mr. Story believed he could better serve the farm interests of his state and the nation at that time by continuing as an independent spokesman. Later he accepted membership on the State ASC Committee at considerable personal sacrifice, taking time from his own extensive farm interests in Southeast Missouri, flying to Columbia and throughout the state in his own plane for the many meetings connected with that position.

Lost with Mr. Story in the crash of that plane was Mrs. George Shelby, also of Charleston, twin sister of Mrs. Story. Mr. Shelby is the current president of the American Cotton Producers Association and is a former president of the Missouri Association.

Along with all the host of other friends of these two outstanding Missouri families who have done so much for Missouri agriculture, my wife and I extend our deepest sympathy.

TOM SAWYER MURALS

Missouri is now represented on the Tom Sawyer fence surrounding the construction site of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts here in Washington.

On September 25, two young artists from Moberly, Missouri, Deborah Lee Cross, 14, and Retta Ragsdale, 13, presented their mural of our state, and received Certificates of Appreciation from Mrs. Jean Kennedy Smith, sister of the late President Kennedy. Mrs. Hope Scheperle, formerly the art director of Moberly Public Schools, was chosen by the Missouri State Council on the Arts to direct the project. Mrs. Scheperle is now art consultant for the Ozarks Bi-Cultural Center.

The Missouri mural shows the State Capitol, the Gateway Arch, the outdoor theaters of Kansas City and St. Louis, the Truman Library, and a section of the "Tom Sawyer fence" at Hannibal. The Missouri mural now takes its place on the colorful Tom Sawyer fence alongside the paintings of high school students representing 36 other states, 26 foreign countries and 5 territories.

Didn't Coin Phrase

Grover Cleveland did not coin the expression, "A public office is a public trust," but he many times gave expression to the sentiment. This served to fix the authorship upon him in the mind of the public.

Greeted Visitors

Last U.S. president to make himself available to every Washington visitor was public relations-minded Calvin Coolidge. On most days, at 12:30 p.m., he held open house for several hundred persons who filed through his office to shake hands.

Foreign Affairs Long Source of Disputes

WASHINGTON (AP) — It seems simple and is anything but. Presidents from the beginning to Lyndon B. Johnson all knew it. Some found out the hard way. And there has been some tragedy in the process.

Deals with other nations were mostly by treaty 180 years ago when the Constitution - makers were stitching the document together. Never imagining the problems to come, they gave foreign affairs a fast brush.

Almost all the Constitution says about the foreign field is in Article II: The president can make treaties with the "advice and consent" of the Senate, if two-thirds of the senators approve.

In short, the president can take the initiative in foreign affairs but the Senate can veto him. This was an invitation to conflict since presidents and the Senate are jealous of their powers. Conflict followed.

The oversimplified formula did not allow for the difficulty of getting a two-thirds Senate vote—particularly when the opposition party controls the Senate. There were no political parties in 1787. Nor was allowance made for such human factors as ill-will in wrecking a treaty. President Woodrow Wilson and the powerful Republican senator, Henry Cabot Lodge, hated each other.

Lodge was captain of the forces which killed Wilson's plea to the Senate to approve joining the League of Nations. History would have been different if Wilson had won.

Exactly what does "advice" mean? And when should a President ask the Senate for it; after negotiating a treaty down to the last detail or before he even starts on it, not knowing what details the other side wants?

George Washington, as first president, had to get the first answers. Naturally, he thought getting the Senate's advice on a treaty meant getting it before he made one. He was working on a treaty with the southern Indians.

He went before the full Senate and had Vice President John Adams read the main points. Outside, passing carriages made so much noise the senators could not hear Adams. He had to re-read.

Then the senators got into an argument among themselves over whether they should see all, or just some, of the documents. One of them finally suggested turning the whole business over to a committee.

Burned up, Washington stalked out, saying "this defeats every purpose of my coming here." One senator, burned up at Washington, wrote later that the president was trying to step on the senators' necks.

After that, presidents might talk with individual senators about a treaty-in-the-making but they finished their treaties before sending them to the Senate for "advice and consent" and the two-thirds vote.

Just waiting for that two-thirds approval means delay on a major treaty. Wilson thought he could stir public opinion to pressure the Senate into approving the League. He barnstormed the country, made 37 speeches, and then physically collapsed, never fully to recover. And his fight was lost.

With all these two-thirds difficulties in mind presidents began finding shortcuts by making "executive agreements" with other nations. These did not need Senate approval, at least not all the time.

And they tried other things, like getting the Senate and the House to approve what they did by passing a resolution which only needed a majority vote.

This is how Presidents John Tyler in 1845 and William McKinley in 1898 managed to get Texas and Hawaii annexed when they could not get a two-thirds Senate vote.

Right now there is a move afoot in the form of a resolution in the Senate, where a lot of the members are upset over Johnson's handling of the Vietnamese war, to restrict his powers in foreign affairs.

It's a half-baked move, since a resolution is not legally binding. But it could, if approved by the Senate, damage Johnson by undercutting his prestige and effectiveness with the rest of the world.

We're city folks, and don't know much about growing things. Each of the 46 almost identical houses on our block has a handkerchief of lawn in back, a skimpy hedge in front, and lots of concrete. Every two houses share a tree on a postage stamp of earth at the curb.

When a gas leak under the street killed our tree, I could have taken it in stride had it not been for my neighbor. She wept openly. Only my affection for her made me agree to share the expense of replacing it. But each puny sapling that we planted just refused to grow. One by one they died, were uprooted and replaced. We were the butt of our neighbors' good-natured raillery. As No. 5 was planted, I made up my mind: that was it — I would pay for no more.

But two nights later a storm lashed the city. Suddenly that tree became very important. With cord and fence pickets, we tried to brace the skinny trunk against the gale. Unbelievably, doors started opening and, with sheepish grins, one by one, our neighbors came to help. The storm passed, and with the morning sun the little tree seemed to proclaim: "I've made it!" And it has. More than a year later, it's doing fine.

Well, I went over to mother's and conned her into shortening all of my skirts and I thought that at least I was prepared to hold my own with the leggy look -- not so daddy oh! I have just recently returned from the thriving city of Memphis, and there I learned (much to my sorrow), that I am still a dowdy and my skirts are way too long. With my luck, about the time they drop to your ankles, I'll have just finished having mine all hoisted thigh high. Anyway, I informed my mama that I needed my wardrobe lifted at least another inch or so, and you should have seen the horrified expression that crossed her face. You see my mother has this problem, she thinks (as a result of being a child bride), that I am her sister and her age, while Betty, my younger sister, and I might add she is much, much younger sister is really my daughter. Well, of course, I'm seven years nearer Betty's age than I am my mother's, but I am sure due to my fast and ever increasing maturity, and the fact that my mother looks just like my sister, (my younger one), makes the fact that I'm her daughter occasionally slip her mind. So, she thinks a woman of our ages definitely needs to wear longer skirts, and particularly when they have fat knees like I do. Now what do you do in a situation like this? Just because I have as many grey hairs as she, weigh 12 pounds more which gives me the plump matronly figure and keeps her in Twiggy's league, and have more wrinkles on my brow -- still, how do I convince her I'm a member of the younger (at least younger than some), generation and I need to get Mod? I tell you, she and Charles are a pair, they expect me at 30 to sit in a rocker and take up knitting, and I think I'm a little bit dotty when I try to get gay. But I'll tell you something, just like I told Charles, I may look like the old gray mare who ain't what she used to be, but I ain't gonna act like it. Charles says he can't stand looking at all the ladies girdles when they sit down in these short skirts, but I'm going to go and tack some lace on the bottom of my long-line, and then he can't complain as he just loves frilly undies. So watch out gang, cause here I come, fat knees, lacy long lines and all -- that is if I can ever get away from these fellows in the white coats mom and Charles hired to sit with me!
